Solibo Magnificent:

Soundings in French Caribbean Writing Since 1950 Mary Gallagher, 2002-11-07 Over the second half of the twentieth century a substantial flow of writing emerged from the French held Caribbean Much of this work is both theoretically knowing and poetically potent and has attracted international attention to the literary resonances of the uniquely complex geo historical situation of the Caribbean and indeed of the Americas in general Much of its passion pertinence and appeal inheres in its approach to time and to space an approach still reverberating with the shock of displacement and its various after tremors an exploded sense of diversity radical relativization the profound expropriations of enslavement colonial erosion Through readings of high profile as well as lesser known writing this book tracks some of the more striking tensions and tropisms at work in the French Caribbean imagination of space and time and their intersection It studies generic interplay textual palimpsest narrative structure and other dynamics of writing that realize and manipulate the intersections of time and space history and memory writing and rewriting voice and text referential space and inter textual space as well as cultural theory and literary practice identity and difference place and displacement In this way it probes both the strains and the stresses and also the insights and gravitations that make for the particular French Caribbean timbre of this volume of writing This specific vibration while illuminating Caribbean New World and post colonial thinking in general also encourages wider reflection on global resonances of displacement and dislocation and on more general issues such as the role of writing and of narrative in particular in the confrontation of absence and presence loss and desire distance and diversity This book locates the problematic of time space in relation to historiographical geo cultural and phenomenological thinking and it also takes account of the detonation of critical interest in what is broadly termed post colonial writing Its fundamental concern however is to show how a particular corpus of writing has in the space of half a century and from a bracing position of hyper relationality responded imaginatively and poetically to the challenge of envisioning place and of relating space to time

Queer Roots for the Diaspora Jarrod Hayes, 2023-06-20 Employing rootedness as a way of understanding identity has increasingly been subjected to acerbic political and theoretical critiques Politically roots narratives have been criticized for attempting to police identity through a politics of purity excluding anyone who doesn't share the same narrative Theoretically a critique of essentialism has led to a suspicion against essence and origins regardless of their political implications The central argument of Queer Roots for the Diaspora is that in spite of these debates ultimately the desire for roots contains the roots of its own deconstruction The book considers alternative root narratives that acknowledge the impossibility of returning to origins with any certainty welcome sexual diversity acknowledge their own fictionality reveal that even a single collective identity can be rooted in multiple ways and create family trees haunted by the queer others patrilineal genealogy seems to marginalize The roots narratives explored in this book simultaneously assert and question rooted identities within a number of diasporas African Jewish and Armenian By looking at these together one can discern between the local specificities of any single diaspora and the commonalities inherent in diaspora as a global phenomenon This comparatist interdisciplinary study will interest scholars in a diversity of fields including diaspora studies postcolonial studies LGBTQ studies French and Francophone studies American studies comparative literature and literary theory

Packaging Post/coloniality Richard Watts, 2005-01-01 Packaging Post Coloniality reads the marketing matter surrounding works of Francophone literature as an important though overlooked source in the cultural history of colonialism and the articulation of new identities in France and the Francophone world

To See the Wizard Laurie Ousley, 2021-02-19 To See the Wizard Politics and the Literature of Childhood takes its central premise as the title indicates from L Frank Baum's The Wonderful Wizard of Oz Upon their return to The Emerald City after killing the Wicked Witch of the West the task the Wizard assigned them Dorothy the Tin Woodman

Scarecrow and Lion learn that the wizard is a humbug merely a man from Nebraska manipulating them and the citizens of both the Emerald City and of Oz from behind a screen Yet they all continue to believe in the powers they know he does not have still insisting he grant their wishes The image of the man behind the screen and the reader's continued pursuit of the Wizard is a powerful one that has at its core an issue central to the study of children's literature the relationship between the adult writer and the child reader As Jack Zipes Perry Nodelman Daniel Hade Jacqueline Rose and many others point out before the literature for children and young adults actually reaches these intended readers it has been mediated by many and diverse cultural social political psychological and economic forces These forces occasionally work purposefully in an attempt to consciously socialize or empower training the reader into a particular identity or way of viewing the world by one who considers him or herself an advocate for children Obviously these wizards acting in literature can be the writers themselves but they can also be the publishers corporations school boards teachers librarians literary critics and parents and these advocates can be conservative progressive or any gradation in between It is the purpose of this volume to interrogate the politics and the political powers at work in literature for children and young adults Childhood is an important site of political debate and children often the victims or beneficiaries of adult uses of power one would be hard pressed to find a category of literature more contested than that written for children and adolescents Peter Hunt writes in his introduction to Understanding Children's Literature that children's books are overtly important educationally and commercially with consequences across the culture from language to politics most adults and almost certainly the vast majority in positions of power and influence read children's books as children and it is inconceivable that the ideologies permeating those books had no influence on their development If there were a question about the central position literature for children and young adults has in political contests one needs to look no further than the myriad struggles surrounding censorship Mark I West observes for instance Throughout the history of children's literature the people who have tried to censor children's books for all their ideological differences share a rather romantic view about the power of books They believe or at least they profess to believe that books are such a major influence in the formation of children's values and attitudes that adults need to monitor every word that children read Because childhood and young adulthood are the sites of political debate for issues ranging from civil rights and racism to the construction and definition of the family indoctrinating children into or subverting national and religious ideologies the literature of childhood bears consciously political analysis asking how socialization works how children and young adults learn of social cultural and political expectations as well as how literature can propose means of fighting those structures To See the Wizard Politics and the Literature of Childhood intends to offer analysis of the political content and context of literature written for and about children and young adults The essays included in To See the Wizard analyze nineteenth and twentieth century literature from America Britain Australia the Caribbean and Sri Lanka that is for and about children and adolescents The essays address issues of racial and national identity and representation poverty and class mobility gender sexuality and power and the uses of literature in the healing of trauma and the construction of an authentic self

Hunger and Irony in the French Caribbean Nicole Simek, 2016-11-14 Through a series of case studies spanning the bounds of literature photography essay and manifesto this book examines the ways in which literary texts do theoretical ethical and political work Nicole Simek approaches the relationship between literature theory and public life through a specific site the French Antillean islands of Guadeloupe and Martinique and focuses on two mutually elucidating terms hunger and irony Reading these concepts together helps elucidate irony's creative potential and limits If hunger gives irony purchase by anchoring it in particular historical and material conditions irony also gives a literature and politics of hunger a means for moving beyond a given situation for pushing through the inertias of history and culture

Intimate Enemies Kathryn Batchelor, Claire Bisdorff, 2013 The concept of translation has become central to postcolonial theory in recent decades This volume draws together reflections by translators authors and academics working across Africa the Caribbean and the Indian Ocean areas where the linguistic legacies of French colonial operations are long lasting and complex

Translation in French and Francophone Literature and Film James T. Day, 2009 This volume collects papers presented at the annual French Literature Conference sponsored by the Department of Languages Literatures and Cultures of the University of South Carolina

Far Afield Vincent Debaene, 2014-04-04 Anthropology has long had a vexed relationship with literature and nowhere has this been more acutely felt than in France where most ethnographers upon returning from the field write not one book but two a scientific monograph and a literary account In Far Afield brought to English language readers here for the first time Vincent Debaene puzzles out this phenomenon tracing the contours of anthropology and literature's mutual fascination and the ground upon which they meet in the works of thinkers from Marcel Mauss and Georges Bataille to Claude Lévi Strauss and Roland Barthes The relationship between anthropology and literature in France is one of careful curiosity Literary writers are wary about

anthropologists scientific austerity but intrigued by the objects they collect and the issues they raise while anthropologists claim to be scientists but at the same time are deeply concerned with writing and representational practices Debaene elucidates the richness that this curiosity fosters and the diverse range of writings it has produced from Proustian memoirs to proto surrealist diaries In the end he offers a fascinating intellectual history one that is itself located precisely where science and literature meet
