Timber Booms and Institutional Breakdown in Southeast Asia Michael L. Ross, 2001-01-08 Scholars have long studied how institutions emerge and become stable But why do institutions sometimes break down In this book Michael L Ross explores the breakdown of the institutions that govern natural resource exports in developing states He shows that these institutions often break down when states receive positive trade shocks unanticipated windfalls Drawing on the theory of rent seeking he suggests that these institutions succumb to a problem he calls rent seizing the predatory behavior of politicians who seek to supply rent to others and who purposefully dismantle institutions that restrain them Using case studies of timber booms in Indonesia Malaysia and the Philippines he shows how windfalls tend to trigger rent seizing activities that may have disastrous consequences for state institutions and for the government of natural resources More generally he shows how institutions can collapse when they have become endogenous to any rent seeking process Opium to Java James Robert Rush,2007 Opium smoking was a widespread social custom in nineteenth century Java and commercial trade in opium had far reaching economic and political implications As in many of the Dutch territories in the Indonesian archipelago the drug was imported from elsewhere and sold throughout the island under a government monopoly a system of revenue farms These monopoly franchises were regulated by the government and operated by members of Java s Chinese elite who were frequently also local officials appointed by the Dutch The farms thus helped support large Chinese patronage networks that vied for control of rural markets throughout Java James Rush explains the workings of the opium farm system during its mature years by measuring the social economic and political reach of these monopolies within the Dutch dominated colonial society His analysis of the opium farm incorporates the social history of opium smoking in Java and of the Chinese officer elite that dominated not only the opium farming but also the island s Chinese community and much of its commercial economy He describes the relations among the various classes of Chinese and Javanese as well as the relation of the Chinese elite to the Dutch and he traces the political interplay that smuggling and the black market stimulated among all these elements An important contribution to the social and political history of Southeast Asia and now brought back to life as a member of Equinox Publishing s Classic Indonesia series this book gives a new dimension to our knowledge of nineteenth century Javanese society and the processes of social control and economic dominance during the colonial period JAMES R RUSH is a historian of modern Southeast Asia whose other works include The Last Tree Reclaiming the Environment in Tropical Asia Java A Travellers Anthology and several volumes of contemporary Asian biography in the Ramon Magsaysay Awards series His is associate professor of history at Arizona State University Tropical Deforestation Leslie Elmer Sponsel,Thomas N. N. Chin,1998 Examining how the shared interests of state elites and the middle classes rationalize mistreatment of domestic workers the author argues that the premodern exploitation of migrant domestic workers is at odds with the global expansion of open markets and free trade

Environment : Problems and Solutions D K Asthana,2001 For Degree and Post Graduate Students The Green Tiger Barbara Goldoftas,2006 The Philippines was once famous for the beauty of its reef ringed islands white beaches and lush forests In less than a half century its forests were felled its oceans over fished and its coral reefs destroyed The rapid harvest of once abundant resources has brought droughts deadly flash floods and the collapse of vital fisheries As the rural economy weakened and millions migrated to cities they overwhelmed the urban infrastructure Today the Philippines stands as an example of the profound and sweeping consequences of ecological decline In The Green Tiger Barbara Goldoftas documents this tragic trajectory But hers is not a story of hopelessness and inevitable defeat In lyrical unflinching prose she traces the struggle for conservation in the Philippines from isolated villages to large cities and in the process illustrates the surprising ways in which conservation and economic growth can effectively co exist The Social Dynamics of Deforestation in the Philippines Gerhard van den Top,2003 This work offers a detailed case study on the dynamics of forest use degradation and loss in Northeast Luzon Philippines Following an interdisciplinary approach the study charts the degradation and loss of forest in this area between 1950 and 1990 as it relates to the social and political context of logging forest migration and changes in upland agriculture Based on ten years of research the author introduces us to the actions livelihood options and motives of all the principal group of actors The Face of the Earth J. Donald Hughes,2015-05-11 Although the organizing principle of virtually every world history text is development the editor of this volume maintains that this traditional approach fails to address the issue of sustainability By adopting the ecological process as their major theme the authors show how the process of human interaction with the natural environment unfolded in the past and offer perspective on the ecological crises in our world at the beginning of the 21st century Topics range from broad regional studies that examine important aspects of the global environment that affect nations to a study of the widespread influence of one important individual on his nation and beyond The authors take different approaches but all share the conviction that world history must take ecological process seriously and they all recognize the ways in which the living and non living systems of the earth have influenced the course of human affairs World Ecological Degradation Sing C. Chew,2001-06-06 Deforestation soil runoff salination pollution While recurrent themes of the contemporary world they are not new to us In this broad sweeping review of the environmental impacts of human settlement and development worldwide over the past 5 000 years Sing C Chew shows that these processes are as old as civilization itself With examples ranging from Ancient Mesopotamia to Malaya Mycenaean

Greece to Ming China Chew shows that the processes of population growth intensive resource accumulation and urbanization in ancient and modern societies almost universally bring on ecological disaster which often contributes to the decline and fall of that society He then turns his eye to the development of the modern European world system and its impact on the environment Challenging us to change these long term trends Chew also traces the existence of environmental conservation ideas and movements over the span of 5 000 years Can we do it Look at Chew s evidence of the past five millennia and decide Ideal for courses in environmental history anthropology and sociology and world systems theory The Non-Western World Pradyumna P. Karan, 2004-12-30 This new introductory textbook provides an integrated up to date introduction to the lands people and cultures of the non Western world
