Swallowing A Fishbone Feminist Theologians Deba:

Swallowing a Fishbone? Margaret Daphne Hampson, 1996 Six British theologians who count themselves feminist engage in debate over the compatibility of feminism and Christianity They range over questions of theology ethics feminist praxis and spirituality drawing on diverse fields as feminist liberation theology patristic Christology narrative theology and post Christian thought

Deadly Innocence Angela West, 1995 By discarding huge areas of Christian theology as male creations feminists have silenced aspects of the tradition that might actually help us in the quest for innocence for example the acknowledgement of our own capacity for sin and the recognition that women too have had their part in the history of violence

Fragments for Fractured Times Nicola Slee, 2020-09-30 If ever a period of time felt fractured it is now Whichever way we turn we witness the dismembering and fracturing of many previously taken for granted realities with maps and borders physical and metaphorical being redrawn before our eyes What place for the feminist practical theologian in such a climate In Fragments for Fractured Times one of the world's leading feminist practical theologians Nicola Slee brings together 15 years of papers articles talks and sermons many of them previously unpublished Collected from diverse times places settings and occasions Slee offers an introduction to each fragment holding it up to the light and examining its size shape texture and pattern Drawing on a wide and diverse range of her writing Slee demonstrates the richness and variety of feminist practical theological writing What feminist theology brings to the table of scholarly thinking and embodied practice is she suggests something creative artful prophetic as well as playful a resource for Christian living and thinking in fractured times

After Christianity Daphne Hampson, 2002 Describes a systematic theology for our times directed towards those many people who feel compelled to discard the Christian story but who would nonetheless be spiritual persons This reissue features a new introduction in which the author responds to a number of her critics

From Feminist Theology to Indecent Theology, 2008

Sexism and Sin-Talk Rachel Sophia Baard, 2020-01-01 Early feminist theologians criticized the Christian doctrine of sin for its focus on female sexual purity and its enabling of the marginalization and oppression of women Others have questioned whether the entire theological category of sin should be abandoned in favor of other ways of talking about the human predicament In this new book Rachel Baard argues for a feminist critique of traditional sin talk alongside a constructive reinterpretation of the doctrine of sin one that can be life affirming for all persons She claims that the Christian idea of sin that tragic flaw at the core of human experience provides one of the best tools for understanding the evils of sexism patriarchy and traditional sin talk itself She likewise provides a new rhetoric of sin talk one that accounts for the diverse experiences of the human family not simply those of powerful men

No Sense of Entitlement Heather Thomson, 2023-09-25 How might we keep alive the interests and concerns of protest theologies and the constructive contributions they make Feminist liberation and postcolonial theologies offer guiding questions for this task What is the purpose of theology Whose interests are being served What might be the public effects of this theology This book attends to these questions through a collection of publications over the lifetime of one feminist theologian Growing up in Australia as these new protest theologies were emerging Thomson recalls the influences that went into forming her as the theologian she became She specialized in hermeneutics looking for stars and compasses that might guide her theology into these new territories with a willingness to listen to the Christian tradition for its life giving words and a willingness to critique it for the ideologies it carried This double hermeneutic can be seen throughout her work The chapters in this book are divided thematically into five parts Theology and Teaching Public Theology The Church The Atonement and Being Human Her interests in feminist and liberation theologies inform each theme so that she might pass on theology better than she received it

Sexism and God Talk Rosemary R. Ruether, 1993-04-01 How did a religion whose founding proponents advocated a shocking disregard of earthly ties come to extol the virtues of the traditional family In this richly textured history of the relationship between Christianity and the family Rosemary Radford Ruether traces the development of these centerpieces of modern life to reveal the misconceptions at the heart of the family values debate

Feminist Theology Ann Loades, 2001-06-08 Some feminist women search for the roots of feminism in the recent past others write the past off Too many assume that religious traditions have nothing to offer feminism so even when religious belief has been central to the inspiration of some of the most powerful campaigners for the value and worth of women the significance of that belief has been ignored Mary Wollstonecraft argued for the rights of women Josephine Butler fought against the devaluation of women expressed in the Contagious Diseases Acts Dorothy L Sayers had a powerful sense of the way women and men grace one another's lives in their work They all drew on the Christian tradition of their own times but this has rarely been given weight These women have not been considered together nor as theologians as here in Ann Loades's new book In their life time each of them opened up some painful issues abortion and its significance in our shared social lives forms of coercion especially the sexual abuse of children and the importance of women's work Their courage and generosity offer salutary challenges to our own times Feminist Theology will be of interest to all those concerned with contemporary theological questions as well as to students of feminism and the analysis of gender in sociology politics and the humanities

Escape from Paradise Kathleen M. Sands, 1994 With a sure and profound grasp of both the Christian tradition and the postmodern situation Sands faults mainstream and feminist theologies for failing to recognize the inescapably tragic character of life Her work is a strong and overt challenge to theology as usual and a call to theologians of all stripes to be ruthlessly honest in their religious reflections
