Europe the Middle East Asia Africa and the Americas The authors analyze the increasing importance attached to globalization as a factor in how social institutional and economic change shapes national and regional educational trends Although recent research in economic history has increasingly devoted more attention to global forces in shaping the institutions and fortunes of different world regions the link and contrast between national education policies and the forces of globalization remains largely under researched within the field The globalization of the world economy starting in the nineteenth century brought about important changes that affected school policy itself as well as the process of long term human capital accumulation Large migrations prompted brain drain and gain across countries alongside rapid transformations in the sectoral composition of the economy and demand for skills Ideas on education and schooling circulated more easily bringing about relevant changes in public policy while the changing political voice of winners and losers from globalization determined the path followed by public choice Similarly religion and the spread of missions came to play a crucial role for the rise of schooling globally

The Peregrine Profession Per-Olof Grönberg, 2018-11-26 In The Peregrine Profession Per Olof Grönberg offers an account of the pre 1930 transnational mobility of engineers and architects educated in the Nordic countries 1880 1919 Outlining a system where learning mobility was more important than labour market mobility the author shows that more than every second graduate went abroad Transnational mobility was stronger from Finland and Norway than from Denmark and Sweden partly because of slower industrialisation and deficiencies in the domestic technical education This mobility included all parts of the world but concentrated on the leading industrial countries in German speaking Europe and North America Significant majorities returned and became agents of technology transfer and technical change Thereby these mobile graduates also became important for Nordic industrialisation
