

The background of the book cover is a deep blue with a large, faint, and slightly blurred image of a massive mechanical gear. Overlaid on this are white line drawings of two surveying instruments. The upper instrument is a theodolite or similar optical device mounted on a tripod, with a horizontal circle and various adjustment knobs. The lower instrument is a simpler, more compact device, also on a tripod, with a central vertical axis and a circular base. The overall design is technical and historical.

A. Talbert, 2017

The Making of Measure and the Promise of Sameness Emanuele Lugli, 2024-05-31 An interdisciplinary history of standardized measurements Measurement is all around us from the circumference of a pizza to the square footage of an apartment from the length of a newborn baby to the number of miles between neighboring towns Whether inches or miles centimeters or kilometers measures of distance stand at the very foundation of everything we do so much so that we take them for granted Yet this has not always been the case This book reaches back to medieval Italy to speak of a time when measurements were displayed in the open showing how such a deceptively simple innovation triggered a chain of cultural transformations whose consequences are visible today on a global scale Drawing from literary works and frescoes architectural surveys and legal compilations Emanuele Lugli offers a history of material practices widely overlooked by historians He argues that the public display of measurements in Italy's newly formed city republics not only laid the foundation for now centuries old practices of making but also helped to legitimize local governments and shore up church power buttressing fantasies of exactitude and certainty that linger to this day This ambitious truly interdisciplinary book explains how measurements rather than being mere descriptors of the real themselves work as powerful molds of ideas affecting our notions of what we consider similar accurate and truthful
