It builds on and critiques scholarship in literacy studies, composition studies, rhetorical theory, gender studies, postcolonial theory, and cultural studies to open new venues for future research. Contributors discuss what literacy is more precisely, what literacies are, but their strongest interest is in documenting and theorizing women's lived experience of these literacies with particular attention to the diversity of women's literacies within the U.S., including but not limited to the varying relations that exist among women, literacy, economic position, class, race, sexuality, and education, relations among women, literacy, and economic contexts in the U.S. and abroad, including but not limited to changes in women's private and domestic literacies, the evolution of technologies of literacy, and women's experience of the commodification of literacies and emergent roles of women and literacy in a globally interdependent world. This broad, significant work is a must read for researchers and graduate students across the fields of literacy studies, composition studies, rhetorical theory, and gender studies.

The Anguish of Displacement Katrina M. Powell, 2007 This book constitutes a counternarrative to Shenandoah National Park official history using 300 letters in park archives written by families who were displaced upon the creation of the national park, authorized by Congress in 1926. Using this significant, newly catalogued corpus of letters, Powell reveals the many facets of the poor, disadvantaged writers who took up letter writing to address the powerful park bureaucracy despite their educational disadvantages. They wrote to resist the rhetorics used to describe them and created their own representations through their letters.
