Conceiving God: The Cognitive Origin and Evolution of Religion

David Lewis-Williams,2010-03-01 A controversial exploration of the origin of religion in the neurology of the human brain In this book the noted cognitive archaeologist David Lewis Williams confronts a question that troubles many people in the world today Is there a supernatural realm that intervenes in the material world of daily life and leads to the evolution of religions Professor Lewis Williams first describes how science developed within the cocoon of religion and then shows how the natural functioning of the human brain creates experiences that can lead to belief in a supernatural realm beings and interventions Once people have these experiences they formulate beliefs about them and thus creeds are born Forty thousand years ago people were leaving traces in the archaeological record of activities that we can label religious and Lewis Williams discusses in detail the evidence preserved in the Volp Caves in France He also shows that mental imagery produced by the functioning of the human brain can be detected in widely separated religious communities such as Hildegard of Bingen s in medieval Europe or the San hunters of southern Africa

Slater,2012-04-27 Original essays by leading scholars consider the environment from biological and ethical perspectives Philosophical reflections on the environment began with early philosophers invocation of a cosmology that mixed natural and supernatural phenomena Today the central philosophical problem posed by the environment involves not what it can teach us about ourselves and our place in the cosmic order but rather how we can understand its workings in order to make better decisions about our own conduct regarding it The resulting inquiry spans different areas of contemporary philosophy many of which are represented by the fifteen original essays in this volume The contributors first consider conceptual problems generated by rapid advances in biology and ecology examining such topics as ecological communities adaptation and scientific consensus The contributors then turn to epistemic and axiological issues first considering philosophical aspects of environmental decision making and then assessing particular environmental policies largely relating to climate change including reparations remediation and nuclear power from a normative perspective Contributors Katie McShane Robert Brandon Rachel Bryant Michael Trestman Brian Steverson Denis Walsh Lorraine Code Jay Odenbaugh Joseph Cannon Mariam Thalou Chrisoula Andreou Clare Palmer Ben Hale Kristin Shrader Frechette Andrew Light
