Igartua, Brian D. Joseph, Kirsten Jeppesen Kragh, Lene Schøsler, 2019-06-15 This volume centers on three important theoretical concepts for the study of language change and the ways in which language structure emerges and turns into new structure reanalysis actualization and indexicality Reanalysis is a part of ongoing everyday language use a process through which language is reproduced and changed Actualization refers to the processes through which a reanalyzed structure spreads throughout single communities and society Indexicality covers the way in which parts of a linguistic system can point to other parts of the system both syntagmatically and paradigmatically The inclusion of indexicality leads to fine grained analysis in morphology word order and constructional syntax Language change for the worse Dankmar W. Enke, Larry M. Hyman, Johanna Nichols, Guido Seiler, Thilo Weber, Andreas Hölzl, 2024-09-05 Many theories hold that language change at least on a local level is driven by a need for improvement The present volume explores to what extent this assumption holds true and whether there is a particular type of language change that we dub language change for the worse i.e. change with a worsening effect that cannot be explained away as a side effect of improvement in some other area of the linguistic system The chapters of the volume written by leading junior and senior scholars combine expertise in diachronic and historical linguistics typology and formal modelling They focus on different aspects of grammar phonology morphosyntax semantics in a variety of language families Germanic Romance Austronesian Bantu J Kaingang Wu Chinese Greek Albanian Altaic Indo Aryan and languages of the Caucasus The volume contributes to ongoing theoretical debates and discussions between linguists with different theoretical orientations

Language Change Goparaju Sambasiva Rao, 1994 In Hot Pursuit of Language in Prehistory John D. Bengtson, 2008 Compiled in honor and celebration of veteran anthropologist Harold C Fleming this book contains 23 articles by anthropologists in the general sense from the four main disciplines of prehistory archaeology biogenetics paleoanthropology and genetic historical linguistics Because of Professor Fleming's major focus on language he founded the Association for the Study of Language in Prehistory and the journal Mother Tongue the content of the book is heavily tilted toward the study of human language its origins historical development and taxonomy Because of Fleming's extensive field experience in Africa some of the articles deal with African topics This volume is intended to exemplify the principle in the words of Fleming himself that each of the four disciplines is enriched when it combines with any one of the other four The authors are representative of the cutting edge of their respective fields and this book is unusual in including contributions from a wide range of anthropological fields rather than concentrating in any one of them
