Michael Slowik,2014-10-07 Many believe Max Steiner s score for King Kong 1933 was the first important attempt at integrating background music into sound film but a closer look at the industry s early sound era 1926 1934 reveals a more extended and fascinating story Viewing more than two hundred films from the period Michael Slowik launches the first comprehensive study of a long neglected phase in Hollywood s initial development recasting the history of film sound and its relationship to the Golden Age of film music 1935 1950 Slowik follows filmmakers shifting combinations of sound and image recapturing the volatility of this era and the variety of film music strategies that were tested abandoned and kept He explores early film music experiments and accompaniment practices in opera melodrama musicals radio and silent films and discusses the impact of the advent of synchronized dialogue He concludes with a reassessment of King Kong and its groundbreaking approach to film music challenging the film s place and importance in the timeline of sound achievement United States
