Safeguards and Antidumping in Latin American Trade Liberalization J. Michael Finger, Julio J. Nogues, 2005-12-05 Until the 1990s the main users of safeguards and antidumping laws were Australia Canada the European Union and the United States Since then many countries have implemented such laws leading to a proliferation in antidumping and safeguard activity across the world This timely book documents the political economy surrounding the implementation of these laws in seven Latin American countries and provides details on the institutions created implementation of the laws and subsequent activity It finds that in the larger political context antidumping and safeguards are a necessary quid pro quo to certain important sectors to obtain much more liberalized trade policies for the general economy Free Traders Malcolm Fairbrother, 2020 Today's global economy was largely established by political events and decisions in the 1980s and 90s when scores of nations opened up their economies to the forces of globalization In Free Traders Malcolm Fairbrother argues that politicians embrace of globalization was much less motivated by public preferences than by the agendas of businesspeople and other elites Drawing on over one hundred interviews with decision makers and analyses of archival materials from Canada Mexico and the U S Fairbrother tells the story of how each country negotiated and ratified two agreements that substantially opened and integrated their economies the 1989 Canada U S and trilateral 1994 North American Free Trade Agreement Contrary to what many commentators believe these agreements like free trade elsewhere were based less on mainstream neoclassical economics than on the informal self serving economic ideas of business While the stakes in the globalization debate remain high Free Traders uses a comparative historical approach to sharpen our understanding of how globalization arose in the past to provide us with clearer trajectory for how it will develop in the future

Democratization Without Representation Kenneth C. Shadlen, 2007-08-09 When countries become more democratic new opportunities arise for individuals and groups to participate in politics and influence the making of policy But democratization does not ensure better representation for everyone and indeed some sectors of society are ill equipped to take advantage of these new opportunities Small industry in Mexico Kenneth Shadlen shows is an excellent example of a sector whose representation decreased during democratization Shadlen s analysis focuses on the basic characteristics of small firms that complicate the process of securing representation in both authoritarian and democratic environments He then shows how increased pluralism and electoral competition served to exacerbate the political problems facing the sector during the course of democratization in Mexico These characteristics created problems for small firms both in acting collectively through interest associations and civil society organizations and in wielding power within political parties The changes that democratization effected in the structure of corporatism put small industry at a significant disadvantage in the policy making arena even while there was general agreement on the crucial importance of this sector in the new neoliberal economy especially for generating employment The final chapter extends the analysis by making comparisons with the experience of small industry representation in Argentina and Brazil Shadlen uses extensive interviews and archival research to provide new evidence and insights on the difficult challenges of interest aggregation and representation for small industry He conducted interviews with a wide range of owners and managers of small firms state and party officials and leaders of business associations and civil society organizations He also did research at the National Archives in Mexico City and in the archives of the most important business organizations for small industry in the post World War II period

Globalisation, Trade Liberalisation, and Higher Education in North America C.W. Barrow,S. Didou-Aupetit,J. Mallea,2012-12-06 Since the mid 1970s economic and educational developments in Canada Mexico and the USA have been influenced by two parallel trends 1 the resurgence of glob al economic competition and 2 the active promotion of knowledge intensive serv ice based economies Both trends have been reinforced by the liberalisation of inter national trade under the rubric of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade GATT and the World Trade Organisation WTO The North American Free Trade Agreement NAFTA has accelerated these trends in all three countries by providing the framework for an integrated regional economy in North America designed to compete against comparable trading blocs centred in Japan and the European Union The purpose of this study is to examine the developing relationship between trade liberalisation post industrialisation and higher education in Canada Mexico and the USA The larger trends and linkages that we identitY are by no means confined to these three countries We have chosen to focus on Canada Mexico and the USA because the adoption of the North American Free Trade Agreement has accelerated the devel opment of economic policies in these countries which identitY higher education as a central component of each country s new competitiveness strategy As a conse quence government policy makers and higher education decision makers are responding with targeted initiatives to promote the internationalisation of higher education generally and to promote trilateral co operation among North American higher education institutions specifically

The Shadow of Ulysses José Antonio Aguilar Rivera,2000-01-01 Written by one of the most promising young scholars on

Governments, Non-State Actors and Trade Policy-Making Ann Capling, Patrick Low, 2010-09-09 One of the most pressing issues confronting the multilateral trade system is the challenge posed by the rapid proliferation of preferential trade agreements Plenty has been written about why governments might choose to negotiate preferentially or multilaterally but until now it has been written almost exclusively from the perspective of governments We know very little about how non state actors view this issue of forum choice nor how they position themselves to influence choices by governments about whether to emphasize PTAs or the WTO This book addresses that issue squarely through case studies of trade policy making and forum choice in eight developing countries Chile Colombia Mexico South Africa Kenya Jordan Indonesia and Thailand The case studies are based on original research by the authors including interviews with state and non state actors involved in the trade policy making process in the eight countries of this study
