The Health Rationale For Family Planning Timing Of Births And Child Survival:

The Health Rationale for Family Planning United Nations. Department for Economic and Social Information and Policy Analysis. Population Division, 1994 Among the most influential findings from the World Fertility Survey WFS were those linking fertility patterns to child survival in particular the findings concerning the high infant and child mortality for children born after a short birth interval This study examined the relations between fertility and child survival based on more recent data from the United Nations Demographic and Health Surveys of 25 developing countries In the first part of the study tabular analysis was used to assess the excess risks of child mortality associated with child bearing too early or with short intervals between births The second part used multivariate analysis in order to examine how far the differences observed are affected by a range of controls such as mother s education father s education father s occupation and place of residence Results indicated that children born to mothers under age 18 are 46 percent more likely to die before age 5 than children born to mothers age 20 to 34 similar to the earlier WFS that children born less than 18 months after a previous birth are more than twice as likely to die as children born after a 2 to 4 year interval this risk rate is similar to WFS results although the incidence of such births has generally decreased that maternal education appears to be a very powerful and pervasive correlate of child survival and that for several countries there are striking indications of regional differences in child survival Contains 46 tables and 19 references EV The Health Rationale for Family Planning ,1994 Reproductive

Commentary on the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child Sharon Detrick, 2023-12-18 This book provides a commentary on the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child which was adopted by the General Assembly of the United Nations on 20 November 1989 Part One contains a general introduction to the Convention on the Rights of the Child and deals with matters such as the drafting history the contents direct application horizontal effects limitations the Committee on the Rights of the Child and the Convention's final provisions Part Two contains an article by article commentary the aim of which is not to give an interpretation of the precise nature and scope of States parties obligations but rather to identify the materials or sources which provide guidance in that regard In the identification of such materials attention has been paid to the general rules of treaty interpretation as set forth in the Vienna Convention on the Law of Treaties

From Death to Birth National Research Council, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Commission on Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Committee on Population, 1998-01-12 The last 35 years or so have witnessed a dramatic shift in the demography of many developing countries Before 1960 there were substantial improvements in life expectancy but fertility declines were very rare Few people used modern contraceptives and couples had large families Since 1960 however fertility rates have fallen in virtually every major geographic region of the world for almost all political social and economic groups What factors are responsible for the sharp decline in fertility What role do child survival programs or family programs play in fertility declines Casual observation suggests that a decline in infant and child mortality is the most important cause but there is surprisingly little hard evidence for this conclusion The papers in this volume explore the theoretical methodological and empirical dimensions of the fertility mortality relationship It includes several detailed case studies based on contemporary data from developing countries and on historical data from Europe and the United States
