

The Invention of New Jersey by Jack Anderson

As a poet Jack Anderson is more interested in diversity than in artificially maintaining a single style. He regards the poet as a sort of chameleon adapting himself to the demands of each new set of poetic materials. He is very much affected by the place in which he happens to be, by its appearance, its tone, its pace, and its climate (both physical and emotional).

DIANE WAKOSKI: "I like his poetry because it takes me into another world, one where wit conquers the pain of inadequacy and the sun-beautiful covers up the dingy hopelessness of reality. The test of a poet, for me, is whether or not he can take you into his own world, his own creation, and fascinate you enough to stay there a while and savor the poems. I think Jack Anderson's poetry is a true record of an imagination."

JOHN PERREAULT: "Jack Anderson is one of the most talented poets I know. I have followed his work for some time now with great delight and with great admiration for his wit and his seriousness. . . . The poems in The Invention of New Jersey are funny, beautiful, intelligent (a rarity!) and terribly moving."

Jack Anderson, a graduate of Northwestern University, received his Master's degree from Indiana University. He acted with the San Francisco Arena Theater and the San Francisco Shakespeare Festival, 1963, has been a drama critic, and currently works for Dance Magazine.
