Diachronic Interpretation of the Nostratic Macrofamily Yan Kapranov, Bożena Iwanowska, Bolesław Cieślík, 2024-06-17

This monograph presents a groundbreaking exploration into the Nostratic macrofamily a concept that proposes a common ancestral language for several of the world's foremost language families The study delves deep into the roots of Altaic Afro Asiatic Dravidian Eskimo Aleut Indo European Kartvelian and Uralic languages offering a unique perspective on their interconnections and evolutionary paths The authors examine five pivotal Nostratic etymons from the Swadesh index to illustrate the shared cognitive frameworks of these diverse linguistic groups This research challenges conventional perspectives on language evolution and introduces new methodologies in cognitive macro comparative studies Key to the work is the hypothesis of divergent convergent and convergent divergent evolutionary patterns stemming from a common Nostratic origin Beyond linguistics this study offers insights into human cognitive development language formation and change mechanisms

The Accentual History of the Japanese and Ryukyuan Languages Moriyo Shimabukuro, 2007-06-21

This book looks into the accentual history of the Japanese and the Ryukyuan languages Applying the comparative method the author has reconstructed the accentual history of the Japonic languages The reconstruction is based on modern dialects of Japanese and Ryukyuan and also on historical materials The investigation of natural accent changes has allowed the author to formalize rules for accent change Using these rules the developments of the accent systems of descendant dialects or languages are explained The development of typologically different accent systems is also explored

The Human Inheritance

Brian D. Sykes, Bryan Sykes, 1999

Very little excites human curiosity quite so much as contemplating human origins More than any other branch of science evolution and human evolution in particular is fraught with controversy Working from what is essentially the same data schools of opinion have come to diametrically opposed conclusions Are we adapted Neanderthals or a new species altogether which wiped them out Did the first Americans enter the continent 30 000 or 12 000 years ago Did the Polynesians sail against wind and current to an unknown fate or were they just blown across from South America while out fishing Why do we speak different languages Is it because language traces our biological history or are the two things completely unrelated Evolution because it deals with a past that can never conclusively be known was once ideal material for perpetual debate Enter genetics with a completely new source of objective data Surely these old questions would soon be settled one way or another Or would they Bryan Sykes brings together a world class set of contributors to debate these questions The result is eight lively essays each of which offers a different opinion about what the links between genes language and the archaeological record can tell us about human evolution and indeed whether they can tell us anything conclusive at all This stimulating and challenging book poses more questions than it offers answers eschews jargon and pursues controversy Guaranteed to fascinate anyone who has ever wondered how the fossil record the incredible diversity of human language and our genetic inheritance might

Gamkrelidze, Vjaceslav V. Ivanov, 2010-12-15 Gamkrelidze and Ivanov's wide ranging and interdisciplinary work superbly translated from Russian is a must for every student of Indo European prehistory Its erudition is unsurpassed and its unorthodox conclusions are a continuing challenge Prof Dr Martin Haspelmath Max Planck Institut für Evolutionäre Anthropologie The authors propose a revision of views on a number of central issues of Indo European studies Based on findings of typology they suggest a new analysis of the phonological system of Proto Indo European the Glottalic Theory they offer novel assumptions about the relative chronology of changes in PIE vowels and laryngeals Their conclusions are compared with data from Proto Kartvelian In the second part of the book semantically organized presentation of material from the lexicon is combined with analyses of the use of forms and formulae in a broadly defined cultural context Again similarities with properties of primarily Kartvelian and Semitic are described and extended close contacts with these language families are postulated This necessarily leads to a proposal to place the hypothetical Urheimat of the Indo Europeans in the region south of the Caucasus Volume I and II of the original Russian edition have been combined in the English version as Part I the Bibliography and Indexes are published as Part II      The Turkic Languages Lars Johanson, Éva Á. Handbook of Comparative and Historical Indo-European Linguistics Jared Klein,Brian Joseph,Matthias Fritz,2018-06-11 This book presents the most comprehensive coverage of the field of Indo European Linguistics in a century focusing on the entire Indo European family and treating each major branch and most minor languages The collaborative work of 120 scholars from 22 countries Handbook of Comparative and Historical Indo European Linguistics combines the exhaustive coverage of an encyclopedia with the in depth treatment of individual monographic studies Linguistic Reconstruction and Indo-European Syntax Paolo Ramat,1980-01-01 The aim of the colloquium from which this volume derives was to bring together approaches from general linguistics and language reconstruction to show how these can benefit from each other Although the focus was on Indo European languages other language families were present in the discussion as typological insights may provide useful parallels to IE phenomena and problems At the core of the discussion was the methodological problem of induction vs deduction Convergence and Divergence in Language Contact Situations Kurt Braunmüller,Juliane House,2009 This book deals with the consequences of converging and diverging processes and their development in language contact situations It provides insights into the various forms of language contact and the conditions under which bilingual speakers master their every day life in bilingual communities Its nine contributions cover both theoretical and typological aspects such as the classification of languages the role of language contact linguistic complexity and spontaneous speech innovations and convergence and divergence processes in translation morpho syntax and phonology phonetics Taken together these studies provide challenges for linguistic theories that generalize from situations of monolingualism suggesting instead that a sound linguistic theory cannot be a theory for just one single isolated language but must be a theory for at least two languages It must also account for the fact that some structures involved in contact situations are not kept apart but develop in such a way that the distance decreases between the languages involved

Historical Linguistics Winfred P. Lehmann,2013-05-13 Historical Linguistics provides a comprehensive and clearly written introduction to historical linguistic theory and methods Since its first publication in 1962 the book has established itself as core reading for students of linguistics This edition has been thoroughly revised Drawing on recent linguistic and archaeological research Professor Lehmann incorporates key developments in the field These include exciting advances in the history and development of writing and in typological classification which allows better understanding of the structure of early languages Well illustrated with Indo European examples and supplementary exercises which draw on data from other language families as well the book will enable students to carry out independent work in historical studies on any language family as well as up to date work in Indo European The Indo-Europeans Rediscovered J. P. Mallory,2025-06-19 Today the number of native speakers of Indo European languages across the world is reckoned to be over 2.6 billion or about 45% of the earth's population. Yet the idea that an ancient prehistoric population in one time and place gave rise to our own family of people and language is one with a long and troubled past. In this expansive investigation based on over 50 years of research, J. P. Mallory navigates the complex history of our search for the Indo European homeland, offering fresh insight into the debates surrounding their origin as well as the latest genetic research. In this compelling account, Mallory explores ancient migrations, linguistics, and archaeology, applying cutting edge genetic research to untangle the key arguments with wit and verve. He addresses how the controversial idea of a single shared homeland has been viewed by scientists, archaeologists, and linguists across the past century and reconsiders how, in the case of the Nazis and more recent nationalist movements, they have been manipulated for political advantage. He goes on to unpick the linguistic trail linking us to the Indo Europeans, looking at Sanskrit, Greek, Latin, and more, tracing our linguistic origins across multiple peoples and cultures, finally bringing the most up to date phylogenetic research to bear on the story. Ultimately, this book offers the most conclusive answer to the controversial question of where we are from and how we got here.

How Languages Work Carol Genetti, 2014-01-23 A new and exciting introduction to linguistics, this textbook presents language in all its amazing complexity while guiding students gently through the basics. Students emerge with an appreciation of the diversity of the world's languages as well as a deeper understanding of the structure of human language, the ways it is used, and its broader social and cultural context. Chapters introducing the nuts and bolts of language study (phonology, syntax, meaning) are combined with those on the functions of language (discourse, prosody, pragmatics) and language contact, helping students gain a better grasp of how language works in the real world. A rich set of language profiles help students explore the world's linguistic diversity, identify similarities and differences between languages, and encourages them to apply concepts from earlier chapter material. A range of carefully designed pedagogical features encourage student engagement, adopting a step by step approach and using study questions and case studies.

Proto-Indo-European Syntax and its Development Leonid Kulikov, Nikolaos Lavidas, 2015-07-15 Although for some scholars the very possibility of syntactic reconstruction remains dubious, numerous studies have appeared reconstructing a variety of basic elements of Proto Indo European syntax based on evidence available, particularly from ancient and/or archaic Indo European languages. The papers in this volume originate from the Workshop PIE Syntax and its Development, Thessaloniki 2011, which aimed to bring together scholars interested in these problems and to shine new light on current research into ancient Indo European syntax. Special attention was paid to the development of the hypothetical reconstructed features within the documented history of Indo European languages. The articles in this volume were originally published in the Journal of Historical Linguistics Vol 3.1 2013.

Toward Proto-Nostratic Allan R. Bomhard, 1984 This book represents the culmination of the author's work to date; it incorporates and updates previous articles and adds much new material. This book is not, nor was it ever intended to be, a comparative grammar of either the Indo European or the

Afroasiatic language families It is rather a comparison of Proto Indo European with Proto Afroasiatic While this is not the first attempt to demonstrate that Proto Indo European and Proto Afroasiatic are genetically related it is the first to use the radical revision of the Proto Indo European consonantal system proposed by Thomas V Gamkrelidze Paul J Hopper and Vjaceslav V Ivanov Moreover unlike previous endeavors this is the first to make extensive use of data from the non Semitic branches of Afroasiatic The assumptions underlying this investigation of the possibility of the common genetic origin of Proto Indo European and Proto Afroasiatic differ considerably from the assumptions made in other works on Nostratic the methodological approach followed in this monograph has been one of rigorous adherence to the time honored principles of comparative reconstruction
