The Journal Of The Plague Year:

A Journal of the Plague Year Daniel Defoe, 1904      A Journal of the Plague Year by Daniel Defoe (Annotated) a Man's Experience in Plague Year Daniel Defoe, 2020-04-11 A Journal of the Plague Year is a novel by Daniel Defoe. This novel is an account of one man's experiences of the year 1665 in which the Great Plague or the bubonic plague struck the city of London. The book is told somewhat chronologically though without sections or chapter headings. Presented as an eyewitness account of the events at the time it was written in the years just prior to the book's first publication in March 1722, Defoe was only five years old in 1665 and the book itself was published under the initials H F and is probably based on the journals of Defoe's uncle Henry Foe. In the book, Defoe goes to great pains to achieve an effect of verisimilitude, identifying specific neighborhoods, streets, and even houses in which events took place. Additionally, it provides tables of casualty figures and discusses the credibility of various accounts and anecdotes received by the narrator. The novel is often compared to the actual contemporary accounts of the plague in the diary of Samuel Pepys. Defoe's account, which appears to include much research, is far more systematic and detailed than Pepys's first person account. Whether the Journal can properly be regarded as a novel has been disputed.

Daniel Defoe, 2015-07-06 A Journal of the Plague Year by Daniel Defoe. This novel is an account of one man's experiences of the year 1665 in which the Great Plague or the bubonic plague struck the city of London. The book is told somewhat chronologically, though without sections or chapter headings. Presented as an eyewitness account of the events at the time it was written, in the years just prior to the book's first publication in March 1722, Defoe was only five years old in 1665, and the book itself was published under the initials H F and is probably based on the journals of Defoe's uncle Henry Foe. It was about the beginning of September 1664 that I, among the rest of my neighbours, heard in ordinary discourse that the plague was returned again in Holland, for it had been very violent there, and particularly at Amsterdam and Rotterdam in the year 1663, whither they say it was brought, some said from Italy, others from the Levant, among some goods which were brought home by their Turkey fleet; others said it was brought from Candia, others from Cyprus. It mattered not from whence it came, but all agreed it was come into Holland again. We had no such thing as printed newspapers in those days to spread rumours and reports of things, and to improve them by the invention of men, as I have lived to see practised since. But such things as these were gathered from the letters of merchants and others who corresponded abroad, and from them was handed about by word of mouth only, so that things did not spread instantly over the whole nation as they do now. But it seems that the Government had a true account of it, and several councils were held about ways to prevent its coming over, but all was kept very private. Hence it was that this rumour died off again, and people began to forget it as a thing we were very little concerned in, and that we hoped was not true till the latter end of November, or the beginning of December 1664, when two men said to be Frenchmen died of the plague in Long Acre, or rather at the upper end of Drury Lane. The family they were in endeavoured to conceal it as much as possible, but as it had gotten some vent in the discourse of the neighbourhood, the Secretaries of State got knowledge of it, and concerning themselves to inquire about it, in order to be certain of the truth, two physicians and a surgeon were ordered to go to the house and make inspection. This they did, and finding evident tokens of the sickness upon both the bodies that were dead, they gave their opinions publicly that they died of the plague.

A Journal of the Plague Year By Daniel Defoe

In 1665 the Great Plague swept through London, claiming nearly 100,000 lives. In A Journal of the Plague Year Defoe vividly chronicles the progress of the epidemic. We follow his fictional narrator through a city transformed: the streets and alleyways deserted, the houses of death with crosses daubed on their doors, the dead carts on their way to the pits, and encounter the horrified citizens of the city as fear, isolation, and hysteria take hold. The shocking immediacy of Defoe's description of plague-racked London makes this one of the most convincing accounts of the Great Plague ever written.
