The Kaguru Thomas O. Beidelman, 1983 Case study describing the Kaguru a people living in east central Tanzania East The Kaguru, a Matrilineal People of East Africa Thomas O. Beidelman, 1971 Africa In Search of Living Knowledge Marja-Liisa Swantz, 2016-01-01 Marja Liisa Swantz has spent a lifetime conducting participatory action research in Tanzania and In Search of Living Knowledge encapsulates her reactions She started her career in 1952 in Tanganyika as an instructor to the first generation of women teachers at Ashira Teachers Training College situated on the slopes of Mount Kilimanjaro In the first years of Tanzanias independence from Britain she devoted five years 1965 1970 to participant research in a coastal Zaramo village near the capital city of Dar es Salaam The research culminated in her book Ritual and Symbol in Transitional Tanzanian Society and a doctorate in Anthropology of Religion which she received from the Swedish University of Uppsala in 1970 The author further developed the Participatory Approach to research while serving as a Senior Research Fellow at the University of Dar es Salaam from 1972 to 1975 After becoming a lecturer at the University of Helsinki she continued to develop Participatory Action Research with Tanzanian and Finnish doctoral candidates in a project in Bagamoyo Tanzania known as Jipemoyo She continued to apply the participatory approach in research projects as Director of the Institute of Development Research at the University of Helsinki where she taught anthropology and as a Senior Researcher at the World Institute for Development Economics Research Institute in Helsinki in the 1980s Since retirement the author has continued her research writing and participation in development projects in Tanzania including projects in Mtwara and Lindi from 1992 to 1998 and for 12 years while involved in a Local Government Cooperation project between Hartola in Finland and Iramba in Tanzania Women's Perceptions of Polygyny Among the Kaguru of Tanzania Dominique Meekers, Nadra Franklin, 1997 This study examines women s perceptions of polygyny among the Kaguru of Tanzania Using data from ethnographic interviews the results show a widespread rejection of polygynous unions among Kaguru women Rather than passively accept a co wife a Kaguru women can threaten and sometimes leave her husband when he takes a second wife In evaluating polygyny Kaguru women are mainly concerned with the impact that a diversion of resources from the husband to the CO wife may have on their own welfare and that of their children Despite the fact that Kaguru women have a substantially heavier workload than men there are no indications that women perceive polygyny as a means to reduce that workload by sharing it with a CO wife African Studies Review ,1997 The Ethnographer's Method Alex Stewart, 1998-06-17 Helping ethnographers devise a clearly articulated explanation of their methods this book argues that norms about discussing methods in ethnographies are underdeveloped. The book considers what ought to be normative in methods discussions within ethnography from the research design to the end product Cultural Source Materials for Population Planning in East Africa, 1972 Cultural Source Materials for Population Planning in East Africa: Review of socio-cultural research, 1952-72, 1972 This series in four volumes is primarirly intended as a practical and for all those who are tackling the population problem in East Africa It should assist policy makers administrators of family planning programmes educators organizers of mass education campaigns and research workers. The material presented should be useful for re thinking approaches in family planning programming communication training curricula and as a source for writing manuals to train field workers. The core of the material has been collected through a social anthropology survey

Working Paper Dominique Meekers, Nadra Franklin, 1997 Ethnology, 1995 From Ritual to Modern Art Manfred Ewel, 2001 This beautifully produced and lavishly illustrated book addresses the huge imbalance in appreciation and representation of African art Museums exhibitions lavish catalogues magazines and publications on African art are largely dominated by non African scholars and institutions These imbalances lie in the economic and political discrepancies the history of European colonialism in Africa and the Western tradition of scholarship and public education on art history and ethnography Outside Africa East African art has been assumed to be more or less non existent This is one of the few publications to have come out of Tanzania bearing witness to the appreciation of sculptural art and its tradition in that country The book arose out of a symposium on The Significance of Traditional Cultures for Today's Society which brought together Tanzanian and other experts organised by the National Museums of Tanzania and the German Cultural Centre in Dar es Salaam Papers from that symposium together with additional articles on the history and current state of sculpture in Tanzania present art from an African perspective and include contributions from Western scholars joining forces with African scholars Sociological ethnological and art historical approaches are included illustrating sculpture as the prime example of fine art in Africa both in its purely aesthetic sense and intricately linked with its ever changing cultural context
