Berg, Chris Freeman, 2020-06-09 New perspectives on Christopher Isherwood as a searching and transnational writer Perhaps I had traveled too much left my heart in too many places muses the narrator of Christopher Isherwood's novel Prater Violet 1945 which he wrote in his adopted home of Los Angeles after years of dislocation and desperation In Isherwood in Transit James J. Berg and Chris Freeman bring together diverse Isherwood scholars to understand the challenges this writer faced as a consequence of his travel Based on a conference at the Huntington Library where Isherwood's recently opened papers are held Isherwood in Transit considers the writer not as an English continental or American writer but as a transnational one whose identity politics and beliefs were constantly transformed by global connections and engagements arising from journeys to Germany Japan China and Argentina his migration to the United States and his conversion to Vedanta Hinduism in the 1940s Approaching Isherwood's rootlessness and restlessness from various perspectives these essays show that long after he made a new home in California and became an American citizen Christopher Isherwood remained unsettled although his wanderings became spiritual and personal rather than geographic Contributors Barrie Jean Borich DePaul U Jamie Carr Niagara U Robert L Caserio Penn State U University Park Lisa Colletta American U of Rome Lois Cucullu U of Minnesota Jaime Harker U of Mississippi Carola M Kaplan California State U Pomona Calvin W Keogh Central European U Budapest Victor Marsh Wendy Moffat Dickinson College Xenobe Purvis Bidhan Roy California State U Los Angeles Katharine Stevenson U of Texas at Austin Edmund White

English Fiction in the 1930s Chris Hopkins, 2006-12-07 This study approaches the fiction of the 1930s through critical debates about genre language and history setting these in their original context and discussing the generic forms most favoured by novelists at the time Chris Hopkins uses a series of case studies of texts to draw on develop or explore the boundaries contemporary usefulness and complexities of particular prose genres Generic debates and the political aesthetic effects of different kinds of representation were live issues as discursive struggles and negotiations took place between modernist and realist modes between high middle and lowbrow categorisations of culture between literature and mass culture and between different conceptions of the role of the writer politics and nationality sexuality and gender identities

Chris Hopkins draws both on well known texts and on novels which have only recently begun to be discussed by critics of the thirties particularly those by women writers whose work has still not been related very clearly to the literary and political debates of the period Organised in five sections each focusing on major genres he takes a wide range of novels as case studies and discusses their uses of generic forms relating them to other examples and to their historical political and cultural contexts
