The Italian Townscape Ivor De Wolfe, 2013 Originally published by the Architecture Press in 1963 The Italian Townscape was written by Hubert de Cronin Hastings 1902 1986 under his pseudonym of Ivor de Wolfe with photographs taken by him and his wife Hazel alias Ivy de Wolfe He claimed to have invented the word Townscape and used his position as proprietor editor of the Architectural Review to promote it as a technique to inspire the creation of historically layered visually stimulating dense cities in the period of reconstruction and new towns The theory of Townscape was originally developed by Hastings in collaboration with the architect planner and illustrator Gordon Cullen whose book of this name published in 1961 remains a standard work In The Italian Townscape Hastings made his own statement sharing his worries about the blandness of modern consumer society and celebrating Italian towns and cities as theatrical background for everyday life Writing at a time when English people were migrating to the suburbs and cars were destroying the conviviality of cities Hastings anticipated the return in recent decades to an ideal of public space where the only true happiness lies at the centre Hastings De Wolfe rekindles our appreciation for individual urban elements articulating his analysis through disparate themes from the more obvious streets advertising and pedestrian network to typically idiosyncratic ones Defensive armour constipation toughies and sissies and all creeping things The photographs evoke the Italy of Fellini s films making it a forgotten classic of travel and photographic publishing whose lessons remain relevant today Professor of Architecture and Cultural History at the University of Greenwich Alan Powers and Professor Erdem Erten of the University of Izmir in Turkey contribute a new introduction to this reprint restoring the identity of Hastings as an author and his role in architecture and planning debates from the 1930s to the 1970s The Italian Townscape Ivor De Wolfe, 1963 The Italian Townscape Ivor De Wolfe, 1963 The Italian Townscape H. de C., Ivy de Wolfe, 2013 The Italian Townscape Ivor De Wolfe, 1963

The Italian Townscape ... Sketches and Plans Drawn by Kenneth Brown. Photographs by Ivy de Wolfe Ivor DE WOLFE (pseud.), 1963 Alternative Visions of Post-War Reconstruction John Pendlebury, Erdem Erten, Larkham Peter, 2014-08-19 The history of post Second World War reconstruction has recently become an important field of research around the world Alternative Visions of Post War Reconstruction is a provocative work that questions the orthodoxies of twentieth century design history This book provides a key critical statement on mid twentieth century urban design and city planning focused principally upon the period between the start of the Second World War to the mid sixties The various figures and currents covered here represent a largely overlooked field within the history of 20th century urbanism In this period while certain modernist practices assumed an institutional role for post war reconstruction and flourished into the mainstream such practices also faced opposition and criticism leading to the production of alternative visions and strategies. Spanning from a historically informed modernism to the increasing presence of urban conservation, the contributors examine these alternative approaches to the city and its architecture.

The Anxious City Richard J. Williams, 2004. A unique and provocative history of the development of the idea of the city in recent years. Key public spaces and buildings in England, Europe, and the USA are discussed in relation to their socio-political context.

Cut and Paste Urban Landscape Mira Engler, 2015-08-11. During the post-war era, the emerging consumer economy radically changed both the discourse and practice of architecture. It was a time where architecture became a mainstream commodity whose products sold through mass media, a time in which Thomas Gordon Cullen came to be one of Britain's best-known twentieth-century architectural draftsmen. Despite Cullen's wide acclaim, there has been little research into his life and work, particularly his printed images and his methods of operation. This book examines Cullen's drawings and book design and also looks into his process of image making to help explain his considerable popularity and influence, which continues to this day. It presents the lessons Cullen had to offer in today's design culture and practice and looks into the post-war consumerist design strategies that are still used today.

The Picturesque John Macarthur, 2013-03-07. In this fresh and authoritative account, John Macarthur presents the eighteenth-century idea of the picturesque when it was a risky term, concerned with a refined taste for everyday things such as the hovels of the labouring poor, in the light of its reception and effects in modern culture. In a series of linked essays, Macarthur shows what the concept of picture does in the picturesque and how this relates to modern theories of the image, how the distaste that might be felt today at the sentimentality of the picturesque was already at play in the eighteenth century, how visual values such as irregularity become the basis of modern architectural planning, how the concept of appropriating a view moves from landscape design into urban design, why movement is fundamental to picturing the stillness of buildings, cities, and landscapes. Drawing on examples from architecture, art, and broader culture, John Macarthur's account of this key topic in cultural history makes engaging reading for all those studying architecture, art history, cultural history, or visual studies.

Big House Little City Benedict Zucchi, 2023-09-08. Shortlisted for the Architectural Book Awards 2024. Combining architectural and urban thinking in an unusual and engaging way, this book presents an integrated approach to architectural theory and design. Leon Battista Alberti's assertion in his famous Renaissance treatise that the city is like a big house and the house is in turn like a little city forms the springboard for a series of reflections on architecture's relationship with urbanism and how their once intimate symbiosis unravelled by International Style Modernism can be recovered. Explicit references to Alberti's house-city phrase have been made by figures as diverse as the architects Louis Kahn, Aldo Van Eyck, Denys Lasdun, and Niels Torp, and novelist Italo Calvino. But as the book shows, thinking of buildings as little cities provides a new lens through which to reappraise the contributions of many other architects, including Le Corbusier, Frank Lloyd Wright, Alvar Aalto, Eliel Saarinen, and Bernard

Rudofsky Hans Scharoun Leon Krier Fumihiko Maki Charles Correa and Team 10 In doing so the author identifies common themes that form an unexpected bridgehead between the urban and architectural approaches of Antiquity the Middle Ages Renaissance and 20th century The book explores buildings from across the globe including lesser known projects such as Wright's unbuilt house in Italy or Saarinen's master plan for Cranbrook Academy as well as more recent projects by Niels Torp Behnisch Architekten Sou Fujimoto Peter Barber and WOHA It concludes with practical case studies of residential health education and workplace projects from different countries fulsomely illustrated with many drawings and photographs These show how architectural design viewed through an urban lens provides a conceptual framework for breaking down the scale of large buildings and integrating them with their context And crucially these also show a very accessible way of explaining evolving designs to the intended users and eliciting their participation in the design process The book offers a compelling approach to the design of projects at all scales within an ecological perspective the sense that big and small cities and buildings must be approached holistically if we are to reverse the degradation and depletion of our habitat both natural and man made

Visual Planning and the Picturesque Nikolaus Pevsner, 2010 A previously unpublished work by Nikolaus Pevsner much of which was published as journal articles in the Architectural Review in the 1940s and 1950s during Pevsner's term as editor

Visual and Spatial Structure of Landscapes Tadahiko Higuchi, 1988-07-06 In this imaginative and generously illustrated book Tadahiko Higuchi applies a methodology to landscape that is similar to that developed by Kevin Lynch for investigating the extent to which urban settings are legible and imageable to their inhabitants He identifies features such as landmarks boundaries paths and nodes that enable people moving through a landscape to piece together a reliable mental map of their surroundings beginning with major structural elements and filling in with successively finer detail

The New Tenement Florian Urban, 2017-10-12 This book examines new tenements dense medium rise multi storey residences that have been the backbone of European inner city regeneration since the 1970s and came with a new positive view on urban living Focusing principally on Berlin Copenhagen Glasgow Rotterdam and Vienna it relates architectural design to an evolving intellectual framework that mixed anti modernist criticism with nostalgic images and strategic goals and absorbed ideas about the city as a generator of creativity locale of democratic debate and object of personal identification This book analyses new tenements in the context of the post functionalist city and its mixed use neighbourhoods redeveloped industrial sites and regenerated waterfronts It demonstrates that these buildings are both generators and outcome of an urban environment characterised by information exchange rather than industrial production individual expression rather than mass culture visible history rather than comprehensive renewal and conspicuous difference rather than egalitarianism It also shows that new tenements evolved under a welfare state that all over Europe has come under pressure but still to a certain degree balances and controls heterogeneity and economic disparities
