

Mr. Amadi's gift as a writer enables him to describe wartime Biafra and war-torn Rivers State with great effectiveness, an effect enhanced by its simplicity and lack of hyperbole, ideology or polemic. It is narrative and perhaps the whole way an unprecedented, monocoated account. "This is not a story of war", Mr. Amadi warns us, "It is an intimate, personal story told for its own sake".

The Times Literary Supplement

ELECHI AMADI is the author of two novels, The Concubine (AWS 25) and The Great Ponds (AWS 44) and of Isiboni, a verse play. He was born in 1934 in Akwa near Port Harcourt in Eastern Nigeria. He went to Government College Umuahia. At University College Ibadan he took a degree in physics and mathematics. After a period of land surveying and teaching he enlisted in the Nigerian Army. Later he left to continue his teaching but rejoined during the Civil War and served with the former 3rd Marine Commandos. He left the army finally to work for the Rivers State Government. He now heads the Ministry of Information.

What was it like to be caught in the cross fire of the Nigerian war? Elechi Amadi rejoined from the Nigerian army before the war began. But to be in the eastern states during the war was to become totally involved. Like many around him, Elechi Amadi suffered imprisonment and humiliation at the hands of people whose authority was the gun. In this moving book one feels what life was like, with death all around, under the rifle-power of the Biafrans and the Federals. The writing, in no way strident, is the product of one of the leading craftsmen among novelists.

The result is a magnificent piece of writing, rendered all the more compelling by its lack of idealism, regrets or melodrama. The literature on the Nigerian civil war is the richer and the more for Sunset in Biafra. African Affairs.
