The Role of Unexpected Events in Stories

Andrea Smorti,2022-11-11 This book stems primarily from the intention to make public the seminar entitled Narratives and Cultural Psychology held by J Bruner and C Feldman in May 2000 in Florence This seminar represents the point of view of these two authors at an important moment in their scientific and human careers on two themes narratives and interpretative communities The central concept on which this book works is the Aristotelian concept of peripeteia which born in the world of art is developed by Bruner in the field of cognitive and cultural psychology and by Feldman in the concept of interpretative community Thus the first purpose of this book is to analyze the role and usefulness of this concept in the study of the world of stories and culture The second aim of this book is to explain clarify and comment on the concept the theoretical assumptions and the key words used by the two authors while also exploring the issues addressed In this way the author wanted to reflect on what contribution this seminar offers today to the theme of narratives and cultural psychology and what the future prospects might be This book is aimed at students and scholars interested in exploring the role that stories play in human culture

We think What We Eat Seth Daniel Kunin, 2004-10-05 In We Think What We Eat Seth Kunin presents both an appreciation and critique of Professor Mary Douglas classical work on Israelite food rules He places her arguments into the context of related anthropological approaches and suggests a new interpretation of the food rules system based on a rigorous application of structuralist theory Kunin then goes on to extend this analysis to other areas of Israelite culture Through detailed analysis of texts from Genesis Exodus and Judges he demonstrates that the same structural pattern found in the first section in respect of ritual is also characteristic of the mythological material This section of the book also takes up the issue of structural transformation It examines the processes found as the myths move from the Israelite context to that of the rabbis the authors of the New Testament and of the Book of Mormon The arguments presented demonstrate that as the myths move from culture to culture diachronically and geographically while the same mythological elements are retained they are restructured and organized based on the structural needs of the new cultural context Kunin is also interested in issues of structuralist theory Thus he addresses issues related to the processes of structural transformation suggesting processes that lead to changes in structural emphasis and those relating to more significant transformations This is volume 412 in the Journal for the Study of the Old Testament Supplement series
