Quality of Intelligence	Analysing

Karma Mimāṃsā is one of the structuring dynamics of Rik Veda. It highlights the ANALYSING quality of intelligence involved in structuring Rik Veda.

With reference to consciousness, Karma Mimāṃsā comprises the specific sets of Laws of Nature that are engaged in promoting the quality of Devatā—the process of observation, the dynamism of observing in the witnessing quality of Rishi—within the Samhitā level of consciousness, providing a structure to the eternally silent, self-referral, self-sufficient, fully awake state of consciousness, which is intimately personal to everyone because it is the intelligence that structures the physiology, maintains its orderly functioning, and upholds its balanced relationship with the physiology of the universe.

This figure shows some of the 12 divisions and 60 subdivisions of the central nervous system corresponding to the 12 chapters and 60 Pāda of Karma Mimāṃsā.

The Karma-Mimamsa (Classic Reprint) Arthur Berriedale Keith, 2015-07-09. Excerpt from The Karma Mimamsa. Not rarely in the Brahmanas, especially in later texts like the Kausltaki, the term Mimamsa occurs as the designation of a discussion on some point of ritual practice. The sacrifice left innumerable opportunities for divergence of usage in detail, and the texts decide in favour of one or the other alternative on the strength of the reasons familiar to the Brahmanas in special the symbolical significance attaching to the action recommended. There is a vital difference between this form of Mimamsa and that of the classical Karma Mimamsa school in the fact that in the former the appeal to authority and the necessity of reconciling apparent discrepancies of authority are entirely lacking. But the tendency to surrender judgment in favour of tradition may be traced in the care with which in the Atapatha and the Kausltaki Brahmanas the name of the teacher is adduced in support of the doctrines expounded in the older style; the reasonings stand by themselves, commended by their intrinsic value. The process by which the Brahmanas came to be regarded as texts of incontrovertible accuracy and speculation on the sacrifice ceased to be independent; cannot now be traced in detail. The account of the sacrifices given in these texts, supplemented by the collections of Mantras in the Samhitas of the various schools, would obviously never have sufficed to enable priests to carry out the sacrifices, and there must have been a full and precise oral tradition regarding the mode in which the sacrifices which formed the subjects of the mystical speculations of the Brahmanas were to be performed.
