Perspectives on Percival Everett Keith B. Mitchell, Robin G. Vander, 2013 Percival Everett writes novels short stories poetry and essays and is one of the most prolific acclaimed yet under examined African American writers working today Although to date Everett has published eighteen novels three collections of short fiction three poetry collections and one children s book his work has not garnered the critical attention that it deserves Perhaps one of the most vexing problems black and white scholars have had in trying to situate Everett s work is that they have found it difficult to place him and his work within a prescribed African American literary tradition Because he happens to be African American critics have expectations of so called authentic African American fiction however his work often thwarts these expectations In Perspectives on Percival Everett scholars engage all of his creative production On the one hand Everett is an African American novelist On the other hand he pursues subject matters that seemingly have little to do with African American culture The operative word here is seemingly for as these essays demonstrate Everett s works falls well within as well as outside of what most critics would deem the African American literary tradition These essays examine issues of identity authenticity and semiotics in addition to postmodernism and African American and American literary traditions issues essential to understanding his aesthetic and political concerns Bird Robert George Reisner, 1965

on a hot New York City weekend in 1948 and until the end of Kerouac's life they were in Holmes's words Brother Souls. Both were neophyte novelists hungry for literary fame but just as hungry to find a new way of responding to their experiences in a postwar American society that for them had lost its direction. Late one night as they sat talking, Kerouac spontaneously created the term Beat Generation to describe this new attitude they felt stirring around them. Brother Souls John Clellon Holmes, Jack Kerouac, and the Beat Generation is the remarkable chronicle of this cornerstone friendship and the life of John Clellon Holmes. From 1948 to 1951 when Kerouac's wanderings took him back to New York, he and Holmes met almost daily. Struggling to find a form for the novel he intended to write, Kerouac climbed the stairs to the apartment in midtown Manhattan where Holmes lived with his wife to read the pages of Holmes's manuscript for the novel. Go as they left the typewriter. With the pages of Holmes's final chapter still in his mind, he was at last able to crack his own writing dilemma. In a burst of creation in April 1951, he drew all the materials he had been gathering into the scroll manuscript of On the Road. Biographer Ann Charters was close to John Clellon Holmes for more than a decade. At his death in 1988, she was one of a handful of scholars allowed access to the voluminous archive of letters, journals, and manuscripts Holmes had been keeping for twenty-five years. In that mass of material waited an untold story. These two ambitious writers, Holmes and Kerouac, shared days and nights arguing over what writing should be, wandering from one explosive party to the next and hanging on the new sounds of bebop. Through the pages of Holmes's journals, often written the morning after the events they recount, Charters discovered and mined an unparalleled trove describing the seminal figures of the Beat Generation: Holmes, Kerouac, Neal Cassady, Allen Ginsberg, William Burroughs, Gregory Corso, and their friends and lovers.

Constructing Spain Nathan Richardson, 2012. Does fiction do more than just represent space? Can our experiences with fictional storytelling be in themselves spatial? In Constructing Spain: The Reimagination of Space and Place in Fiction and Film, Nathan Richardson explores relations between cultural representation and spatial transformation across fifty years of Spanish culture. Beginning in 1953, the year Spanish space was officially reopened to Western thought and capital, and culminating in 2003, the year of Aznar's unpopular involvement of his country in the second Iraq War, Richardson traces in popular and critically acclaimed fiction and film an evolution in Spanish storytelling that while initially representative in nature increasingly engages its audience in spatial practices that go beyond mere perception or conception of local material geographies. In original readings of films by Luis Berlanga, Luis Buñuel, Alex de la Iglesia, Alejandro Amenábar, and Julio Medem, and novels by Juan Goytisolo, Antonio Muñoz Molina, and Javier Marías, Richardson shows this formal evolution as a necessary response to developments, restorations, and transformations of local landscapes that resulted during these years from various human migrations, tourist invasions, urban development plans, resurgent nationalisms, and finally globalization. As these changes occur, Richardson traces a shift in the works studied from mere representation of spatial change toward actual engagement with shifting physical and social geographies as they inch ever closer toward the production of an actual spatial experience for their audiences In the final chapters of this book Richardson offers in depth and highly original readings of the storytelling projects of Medem and Mar as in particular showing how these two artists invite readers to not only reconceive hegemonic notions of space and place but to practice alternative notions of being in place In these final readings Constructing Spain points to the newest developments in contemporary Spanish narrative and film a rise of new grammars of creation to challenge the ongoing capital driven creative destruction of globalized Spanish geography

Spectrality in the Novels of Toni Morrison Melanie R.

Anderson, 2013-03-30 At first glance Beloved would appear to be the only ghost story among Toni Morrison s nine novels but as this provocative new study shows spectral presences and places abound in the celebrated author s fiction Melanie R Anderson explores how Morrison uses specters to bring the traumas of African American life to the forefront highlighting histories and experiences both cultural and personal that society at large too frequently ignores Working against the background of magical realism while simultaneously expanding notions of the supernatural within American and African American writing Morrison peoples her novels with what Anderson identifies as two distinctive types of ghosts spectral figures and social ghosts Deconstructing Western binaries Morrison uses the spectral to indicate power through its transcendence of corporality temporality and explication and she employs the ghostly as a metaphor of erasure for living characters who are marginalized and haunt the edges of their communities The interaction of these social ghosts with the spectral presences functions as a transformative healing process that draws the marginalized figure out of the shadows and creates links across ruptures between generations and between past and present life and death This book examines how these relationships become increasingly more prominent in the novelist s canon from their beginnings in The Bluest Eye and Sula to their flowering in the trilogy that comprises Beloved Jazz and Paradise and onward into A Mercy An important contribution to the understanding of one of America s premier fiction writers Spectrality in the Novels of Toni Morrison demonstrates how the Nobel laureate's powerful and challenging works give presence to the invisible voice to the previously silenced and agency to the oppressed outsiders who are refused a space in which to narrate their stories Melanie R Anderson is an Instructional Assistant Professor of American Literature at the University of Mississippi
