The Great Profundo And Other Stories:

The Great Profundo Bernard MacLaverty,1997 Great Profundo and Other Stories Bernard MacLaverty,2001-10

On the fringes of society the characters of Bernard MacLaverty's stories are forced to seek consolation as best they can. A lonely old lady resorts to posting a monthly letter to herself, a retired policeman and a cornet player captivated by a young flautist seeks oblivion in drink. In a shabby world some simply suffer unseen, a sword swallower once immortalised by Matisse sustains a fatal wound before an unheeding drunken audience, a parish priest slips into death in the cold solitude of his church. Others find unexpected forms of expression: a young boy sheds the shame of his psoriasis through friendship with an eccentric duchess and a poem provides a tenuous link between two inarticulate strangers. Long term relationships can lead to a new understanding: a famous architect and his son becomes aware of a bond of mutual affection despite the gulf between them in attitudes and values.
