Handwritten text in Devanagari script, likely from a manuscript. The text is written in black ink on aged, slightly yellowed paper. The script is cursive and dense, with some characters appearing to be in a different script or dialect. The text is arranged in horizontal lines, though some characters are written vertically or diagonally, suggesting a complex or specific notation system. The overall appearance is that of an old, possibly religious or philosophical, document.

The Art of Bible Translation Robert Alter, 2020-09-08 In this brief book award winning biblical translator and acclaimed literary critic Robert Alter offers a personal and passionate account of what he learned about the art of Bible translation over the two decades he spent completing his own English version of the Hebrew Bible Alter's literary training gave him the advantage of seeing that a translation of the Bible can convey the text's meaning only by trying to capture the powerful and subtle literary style of the biblical Hebrew something the modern English versions don't do justice to The Bible's style Alter writes is not some sort of aesthetic embellishment of the message of Scripture but the vital medium through which the biblical vision of God human nature history politics society and moral value is conveyed And as the translators of the King James Version knew the authority of the Bible is inseparable from its literary authority For these reasons the Bible can be brought to life in English only by re-creating its literary virtuosity and Alter discusses the principal aspects of style in the Hebrew Bible that any translator should try to reproduce word choice syntax word play and sound play rhythm and dialogue In the process he provides an illuminating and accessible introduction to biblical style that also offers insights about the art of translation far beyond the Bible From publisher's description
