M. L. Thompson,1990 Whilst in certain quarters it may be fashionable to suppose that there is no such thing as society historians they have had no difficulty in finding their subject The difficulty rather is that an outpouring of research and writing is hard for anyone but the specialist to keep up with the literature or grasp the overall picture In these three volumes as is the tradition in Cambridge Histories a team of specialists has assembled the jigsaw of topical monographic research and presented an interpretation of the development of modern British society since 1750 from three perspectives those of regional communities the working and living environment and social institutions Each volume is self contained and each contribution thematically defined contains its own chronology of the period under review Taken as a whole they offer an authoritative and comprehensive view of the manner and method of the shaping of society in the two centuries of unprecedented demographic and economic change

Miles, 1999-04-12 This pioneering book provides the first systematic historical analysis of occupational and social mobility in England Using a collection of over 10 000 marriage certificates to examine inter generational change and almost 500 autobiographical texts and abstracts to explore the dynamics of career mobility it shows how the development of the nineteenth century economy was accompanied by rising rates of mobility which made English society more open while at the same encouraging a distinct process of working class formation

Furniture-Makers and Consumers in England, 1754-1851 Akiko Shimbo, 2016-04-15 Covering the period from the publication of Thomas Chippendale's The Gentleman and Cabinet Makers Director 1754 to the Great Exhibition 1851 this book analyses the relationships between producer retailers and consumers of furniture and interior design and explores what effect dialogues surrounding these transactions had on the standardisation of furniture production during this period This was an era before mass production when domestic furniture was made both to order and from standard patterns and negotiations between producers and consumers formed a crucial part of the design and production process This study narrows in on three main areas of this process the role of pattern books and their readers the construction of taste and style through negotiation and daily interactions through showrooms and other services to reveal the complexities of English material culture in a period of industrialisation
