Archaeology and the Homeric Epic Susan Sherratt, John Bennet, 2016-11-30 The relationship between the Homeric epics and archaeology has long suffered mixed fortunes swinging between fundamentalist attempts to use archaeology in order to demonstrate the essential historicity of the epics and their background and outright rejection of the idea that archaeology is capable of contributing anything at all to our understanding and appreciation of the epics Archaeology and the Homeric Epic concentrates less on historicity in favor of exploring a variety of other perhaps sometimes more oblique ways in which we can use a multidisciplinary approach archaeology philology anthropology and social history to help offer insights into the epics the contexts of their possibly prolonged creation aspects of their prehistory and what they may have stood for at various times in their long oral and written history The effects of the Homeric epics on the history and popular reception of archaeology especially in the particular context of modern Germany is also a theme that is explored here Contributors explore a variety of issues including the relationships between visual and verbal imagery the social contexts of epic or sub epic creation or re creation the roles of bards and their relationships to different types of patrons and audiences the construction and uses of history as traceable through both epic and archaeology and the relationship between prehistoric oral and historical recorded in writing periods Throughout the emphasis is on context and its relevance to the creation transmission re creation and manipulation of epic in the present or near present as well as in the ancient Greek past
