God's Song and Music's Meanings James Hawkey, Ben Quash, Vernon White, 2019-07-23 Taking seriously the practice and not just the theory of music this ground breaking collection of essays establishes a new standard for the interdisciplinary conversation between theology musicology and liturgical studies The public making of music in our society happens more often in the context of chapels churches and cathedrals than anywhere else The command to sing and make music to God makes music an essential part of the DNA of Christian worship The book's three main parts address questions about the history the performative contexts and the nature of music Its opening four chapters traces how accounts of music and its relation to God the cosmos and the human person have changed dramatically through Western history from the patristic period through medieval Reformation and modern times A second section examines the role of music in worship and asks what if anything makes a piece of music suitable for religious use The final part of the book shows how the serious discussion of music opens onto considerations of time tradition ontology anthropology providence and the nature of God A pioneering set of explorations by a distinguished group of international scholars this book will be of interest to anyone interested in Christianity's long relationship with music including those working in the fields of theology musicology and liturgical studies

Christian Green, 2019-05-15 A shared interest of law and religion is the advancement of human flourishing yet there is no common understanding of what it means for humans to flourish and the means by which to attain a flourishing life The concept of human flourishing is especially important for Africa where community and national development compete with forces of conflict and scarce resources In the broadest sense the concept of human flourishing focuses our attention on having a comprehensively good or worthwhile life but various religious and legal traditions suggest different norms for measuring the quality of life and designing the institutional structures that could best facilitate and preserve it

The Mind and its Stories Patrick Colm Hogan, 2003-09-29 There are profound extensive and surprising universals in literature which are bound up with universals in emotion Hogan maintains that debates over the cultural specificity of emotion are misdirected because they have ignored a vast body of data that bear directly on the way different cultures imagine and experience emotion literature This is the first empirically and cognitively based discussion of narrative universals Professor Hogan argues that to a remarkable degree the stories people admire in different cultures follow a limited number of patterns and that these patterns are determined by cross culturally constant ideas about emotion In formulating his argument Professor Hogan draws on his extensive reading in world literature experimental research treating emotion and emotion concepts and methodological principles from the contemporary linguistics and the philosophy of science He concludes with a discussion of the relations among narrative emotion concepts and the biological and social components of emotion
