Rea, 2022-04-12 There is a common but often unspoken arrogance on the part of outside observers that folk science and traditional knowledge the type developed by Native communities and tribal groups is inferior to the formal science practiced by Westerners In this lucidly written and humanistic account of the Oodham tribes of Arizona and Northwest Mexico ethnobiologist Amadeo M Rea exposes the limitations of this assumption by exploring the rich ornithology that these tribes have generated about the birds that are native to their region He shows how these peoples observational knowledge provides insights into the behaviors mating habits migratory patterns and distribution of local bird species and he uncovers the various ways that this knowledge is incorporated into the communities traditions and esoteric belief systems Drawing on more than four decades of field and textual research along with hundreds of interviews with tribe members Rea identifies how birds are incorporated both symbolically and practically into Piman legends songs art religion and ceremonies Through highly detailed descriptions and accounts loaded with Native voice this book is the definitive study of folk ornithology. It also provides valuable data for scholars of linguistics and North American Native studies and it makes a significant contribution to our understanding of how humans make sense of their world. It will be of interest to historians of science, anthropologists and scholars of indigenous cultures and folk taxonomy. Peoples of a Sonoran Desert Oasis Jared Orsi, 2023-10-17. In the southwestern corner of Organ Pipe Cactus National Monument on the border between Arizona and Mexico, one finds Quitobaquito, the second largest oasis in the Sonoran Desert. There, with some effort, one might also find remnants of once thriving Oodham communities and their predecessors with roots reaching back at least 12,000 years, along with evidence of their expulsion, the erasure of their past, attempts to recover that history, and the role of the National Park Service (NPS) at every layer. The outlines of the lost landscapes of Quitobaquito, now further threatened by the looming border wall, reemerge in Peoples of a Sonoran Desert Oasis as Jared Orsi tells the story of the land, its inhabitants, ancient and recent, and the efforts of the NPS to reclaim Quitobaquito's pristine natural form and to reverse the damage done to the Oodham community and culture, first by colonial incursions and then by proponents of preservation. Quitobaquito is ecologically and culturally rich, and this book summons both the natural and human history of this unique place to describe how people have made use of the land for some five hundred generations, subject to the shifting forces of subsistence and commerce, tradition and progress, cultural and biological preservation. Throughout, Orsi details the processes by which the NPS obliterated those cultural landscapes and then subsequently, as America began to reckon with its colonial legacy, worked with Oodham peoples to restore their rightful heritage. Tracing the building and erasing of past landscapes to make some of them more visible in the present, Peoples of a Sonoran Desert Oasis reveals how colonial legacies became embedded in national parks and points to the possibility that such legacies might be undone and those lost landscapes remade. The Journal of Arizona History, 1962. Human Adaptations and Cultural Change in the Greater Southwest Alan H. Arizoniana, 1962. The Changing Mile Revisited Raymond M. Turner, Robert H. Webb, Janice Emily Bowers, James Rodney Hastings, 2021-10-19. The Changing Mile, originally published in 1965, was a benchmark in ecological studies, demonstrating the prevalence of change in a seemingly changeless place. Photographs made throughout the Sonoran Desert region in the late 1800s and early 1900s were juxtaposed with photographs of the same locations taken many decades later. The nearly one hundred pairs of images revealed that climate has played a strong role in initiating many changes in the region. This new book updates the classic by adding recent photographs to the original pairs, providing another three decades of data and showing even more clearly the extent of change across the landscape. During these same three decades, abundant information about climatic variability, land use, and plant ecology has accumulated, making it possible to determine causes of change with more confidence. Using nearly two hundred additional triplicate sets of unpublished photographs, The Changing Mile Revisited utilizes repeat photographs selected from almost three hundred stations located in southern Arizona in the Pinacate region of Mexico and along the coast of the Gulf of California Coarse photogrammetric analysis of this enlarged photographic set shows the varied response of the region's major plant species to the forces of change The images show vegetation across the entire region at sites ranging in elevation from sea level to a mile above sea level Some sites are truly arid while others are located above the desert in grassland and woodland Common names are used for most plants and animals with Latin equivalents in endnotes to make the book more accessible to non technical readers The original Changing Mile was based upon a unique set of data that allowed the authors to evaluate the extent and magnitude of vegetation change in a large geographic region By extending the original landmark study The Changing Mile Revisited will remain an indispensable reference for all concerned with the fragile desert environment Sierra Nevada National Forest (N.F.), Sierra Nevada Forest Plan Amendment ,2000 Transactions and Proceedings Series - National Park Service United States. Dunmire,2013-04 This study of livestock and its history focuses not only on the impact of horses and cattle but also the wide variety of animals that shaped life and culture in New Mexico for the Spaniards Natives and Anglos who lived in or settled the region Southwest Builder and Contractor ,1923 Catalog of the Automobile and Motorcycle Collection of the Division of Engineering, United States National Museum Smith Hempstone Oliver,1950 Bulletin ,1947
