organisations and policymakers in Melanesia and internationally are exploring ways to overcome the negative social outcomes associated with witchcraft and sorcery practices and beliefs This book brings together a collection of chapters written by a diverse range of authors both Melanesian and non Melanesian providing crucial insights both into how these practices and beliefs are playing out in contemporary Melanesia and also the types of interventions that are being trialled or debated to address the problems associated with them The Scent of the Father Valentin-Yves Mudimbe,2022-11-09

Valentin Yves Mudimbe is a Congolese philosopher novelist poet essayist and academic widely considered to be one of the most important African thinkers of his generation The ideas and arguments he has developed in his writings since the 1970s including The Invention of Africa have been hugely influential across many disciplines and established his reputation as one of the essential postcolonial thinkers of our time In The Scent of the Father Mudimbe set himself the task of shedding light on the complex links that bind Africa to the West and determine the exercise of thought and knowledge practices particularly in relation to the social sciences For Africa to escape the West says Mudimbe it must become aware of what remains Western in the very concepts and forms of thought that allow it to think against the West and be alert to the possibility that the recourse against the West might be just another ruse that the West uses for its own ends Africa must elucidate the modalities of the integration of Africans into the myths of the West while at the same time aiming at the readaptation of the African psyche in the wake of the violence it has suffered This seminal work by a leading African thinker will be of great interest to anyone concerned with the legacies of colonialism and the debates on decolonization and decoloniality in the social and human sciences Mountain Arapesh Margaret Mead,2018-10-24

For approximately eight months during 1931 1932 anthropologist Margaret Mead lived with and studied the Mountain Arapesh a segment of the population of the East Sepik Province Papua New Guinea She found a culture based on simplicity sensitivity and cooperation In contrast to the aggressive Arapesh who lived on the plains both the men and the women of the mountain settlements were found to be in Mead's word maternal The Mountain Arapesh exhibited qualities that many might consider feminine they were in general passive affectionate and peace-loving Though Mead partially explains the male's femininity as being due to the type of nourishment available to the Arapesh she maintains social conditioning to be a factor in the type of lifestyle led by both sexes Mead's study encapsulates all aspects of the Arapesh culture She discusses betrothal and marriage customs sexuality gender roles diet religion arts agriculture and rites of passage In possibly a portent for the breakdown of traditional roles and beliefs in the latter part of the twentieth century Mead discusses the purpose of rites of passage in maintaining societal values and social control Mead also discovered that both male and female parents took an active role in raising their children Furthermore it was found that there were few conflicts over property the Arapesh having no concept of land ownership maintained a peaceful existence with each other In his new introduction to The Mountain Arapesh Paul B Roscoe assesses the importance of Mead's work in light of modern anthropological and ethnographic research as well as how it fits into her own canon of writings Roscoe discusses findings he culled from a trip to Papua New Guinea in 1991 to clarify some ambiguities in Mead's work His travels also served to help reconstruct what had happened to the Arapesh since Mead's historic visit in the early 1930s Rethinking the Anthropology of Magic and Witchcraft Phillips Stevens, Jr., 2023-12-12 This book introduces students to the anthropology of magic and witchcraft terms widely used but with no widely accepted definitions It takes a new approach to this area within the anthropology of religion demonstrating that the bases for these beliefs and alleged practices are inherent in human cognition and psychology even instinctual and likely rooted in our evolutionary biology It shows how magic and magical thinking are regular elements in people's daily lives and that understanding the components of the witchcraft complex offers surprisingly important insights into patterns of thinking and social behavior The book reviews the many meanings of magic and witchcraft and introduces the best anthropological meanings of the terms The components of these beliefs are timeless and universal this fact and recent advances in the brain sciences suggest that the principles of magic are derived from basic processes of human thinking and the attributes of the witch derive from neurobiologically based fears and fantasies The propensity for such beliefs probably had adaptive significance in the evolutionary development of the human species they are inherently human This book is intended to focus anew on the core concepts of magic witchcraft and the supernatural while also serving as an introduction to the anthropology of religion for undergraduate and graduate level courses
