Development Richard Vokes, 2017-11-15 At the start of the 21st century the relationship between media and development has never felt more important Following a series of media revolutions throughout the developing world beginning with the advent of cheap transistor radio sets in the late 1960s followed by the rapid expansion of satellite television networks in the 1990s and the more recent explosion of mobile telephony social media and the internet a majority of people living in the Global South now have access to a wide variety of Information and Communications Technologies ICTs and live in media saturated environments Yet how can radio television and mobile phones be most effectively harnessed towards the goals of purposive economic social and political change Should they be seen as primarily a provider of channels through which useful information can be delivered to target populations in the hope that such information will alter those populations existing behaviours Or should they be seen as a tool for facilitating two way communication between development providers and their recipients i e as technologies for improving participatory development Or should new media environments be approached simply as sites in which people living in the developing world can define development on their own terms This timely and original book which is based on a critical reading of the relevant literatures and on the author's own extensive primary research introduces readers to all of these questions and helps them to reach their own informed positions on each It also examines the history of and current debates regarding media representations of development Drawing on case studies from all over the world including hate radio in Rwanda theatre for development in India telenovelas in Latin America mobile banking and money in Africa and GIS and humanitarianism in Haiti it will be of interest to all undergraduate and postgraduate students of media and development international development professionals and simply to anyone with an interest in how media does can or should change the world      The SAGE Encyclopedia of African Cultural Heritage in North

America Mwalimu J. Shujaa, Kenya J. Shujaa, 2015-07-13 The Encyclopedia of African Cultural Heritage in North America provides an accessible ready reference on the retention and continuity of African culture within the United States Our conceptual framework holds first that culture is a form of self knowledge and knowledge about self in the world as transmitted from one person to another Second that African people continuously create their own cultural history as they move through time and space Third that African descended people living outside of Africa are also contributors to and participate in the creation of African cultural history Entries focus on illuminating Africanisms cultural retentions traceable to an African origin and cultural continuities ongoing practices and processes through which African culture continues to be created and formed Thus the focus is more culturally specific and less concerned with the broader transatlantic demographic political and geographic issues that are the focus of similar recent reference works We also focus less on biographies of individuals and political and economic ties and more on processes and manifestations of African cultural heritage and continuity FEATURES A two volume A to Z work available in a choice of print or electronic formats 350 signed entries each concluding with Cross references and Further Readings 150 figures and photos Front matter consisting of an Introduction and a Reader s Guide organizing entries thematically to more easily guide users to related entries Signed articles concluding with cross references
