Swords From The North:

Swords from the North Henry Treece, 1967 Swords in the North Paul Anderson, 1957 The Swords of Britain Ian Colquhoun, Colin Burgess, 1988 Bronze Age Settlement and Land-Use in Thy, Northwest Denmark (Volume 1 & 2) Jens-Henrik Bech, Kristian Kristiansen, Berit Valentin Eriksen, 2018-06-04 This two volume monograph about the region of Thy in the early Bronze Age provides a high resolution archaeological and ecological model of the organisation of landscape settlements and households during the period 1500-1100 BC. Bordering the North Sea to the west and the calmer waters of the Limfjord to the east the region of Thy in Denmark experienced four centuries of intense economic and demographic expansion. By combining results from environmental and economic research, pollen and palaeobotanical analyses with intensive field surveys and excavations of farmsteads with exceptional preservation, it has been possible to open a window to the changes that transformed Bronze Age society and its environment during a few centuries of exceptional expansion and wealth consumption. The results from this interdisciplinary venture made it possible to link together the histories of local farmsteads with the wider regional and global history of the Bronze Age in North-western Europe during this period. Here is much to feed on for students and researchers of the Bronze Age alike.

Late Bronze Age Weapon Depositions of North-Western Europe Tobias Mörtz, 2024-11-20 The European Bronze Age ca. 2200 to 800 BC is characterised by the deposition of metal artefacts in very different compositions and conditions. They were usually deliberately abandoned in conspicuous places, especially near bodies of water. The purposes of these actions continue to be controversially interpreted in archaeological research, with the spectrum of suggestions ranging from hidden treasures in times of crisis to concealed caches of craftsmen and traders to ritual offerings to superhuman beings. Tobias Mörtz systematically presents a specific group of these so-called hoards and discusses their interpretation in a wider cultural scientific context. Based on his own investigations of the original artefacts, traces of wear and damage are identified on spearheads and swords from Britain, France and Ireland, indicating their use during violent conflicts and subsequent deliberate destruction by bending, breaking, crushing and burning. The final concealment in wetlands and rivers ruled out a potential retrieval. So were they sacrifices after warlike events? What role did violence play in the Late Bronze Age? Were the rituals also intended to contain it?

Technologies of Enchantment? Duncan Garrow, Chris Gosden, 2012-08-02 While Celtic art includes some of the most famous archaeological artefacts in the British Isles, such as the Battersea shield or the gold torcs from Snettisham, it has often been considered from an art historical point of view. Technologies of Enchantment: Exploring Celtic Art attempts to connect Celtic art to its archaeological context, looking at how it was made, used and deposited. Based on the first comprehensive database of Celtic art, it brings together current theories concerning the links between people and artefacts found in many areas of the social sciences. The authors argue that Celtic art was deliberately complex and ambiguous so that it could be used to negotiate social position and relations in an inherently unstable Iron Age world, especially in developing new forms of identity with the coming of the Romans Placing the decorated metalwork of the later Iron Age in a long term perspective of metal objects from the Bronze Age onwards the volume pays special attention to the nature of deposition and focuses on settlements hoards and burials including Celtic art objects links with other artefact classes such as iron objects and coins A unique feature of the book is that it pursues trends beyond the Roman invasion highlighting stylistic continuities and differences in the nature and use of fine metalwork
