Economic and Social History of the World War Arthur Berriedale Keith, Arthur Lyon Bowley, Carnegie Endowment for International Peace. Division of Economics and History, 1921 City Halls and Civic Materialism Swati Chattopadhyay, Jeremy White, 2014-03-14 The town hall or city hall as a place of local governance is historically related to the founding of cities in medieval Europe As the space of representative civic authority it aimed to set the terms of public space and engagement with the citizenry In subsequent centuries as the idea and built form travelled beyond Europe to become an established institution across the globe the parameters of civic representation changed and the town hall was forced to negotiate new notions of urbanism and public space City Halls and Civic Materialism Towards a Global History of Urban Public Space utilizes the town hall in its global historical incarnations as bases to probe these changing ideas of urban public space The essays in this volume provide an analysis of the architecture iconography and spatial relations that constitute the town hall to explore its historical ability to accommodate the public in different political and social contexts in Europe Asia Australia Africa and the Americas as the relation between citizens and civic authority had to be revisited with the universal franchise under fascism after the devastation of the world wars decolonization and most recently with the neo liberal restructuring of cities As a global phenomenon the town hall challenges the idea that nationalism imperialism democracy the idea of citizenship concepts that frame the relation between the individual and the body politic travel the globe in modular forms or in predictable trajectories from the West to East North to South Collectively the essays argue that if the town hall has historically been connected with the articulation of bourgeois civil society then the town hall as a global spatial type architectural space urban monument and space of governance holds a mirror to the promise and limits of civil society

Sydney's Century Peter Spearritt, 2000. In this lively portrait of Sydney's development, Peter Spearritt traces a century in the life of the city from the celebrations of the Federation of Australia in 1901 to the 2000 Olympic Games. He describes the extraordinary growth of the city and its sprawling suburbs and the transition from a port and a manufacturing center to an international financial hub. Archives and Manuscripts, 1998. A Subject Index to Current Literature. Australian Public Affairs Information Service, Convict Maids Deborah Oxley, 1996-06-17. This analysis of female transports to Australia reveals their significant contribution to the new economy. The Sounds of Aurora Australis Beatrice Dalov, 2021-01-12. Entrenched until recently in Western aesthetics, Australian composers are now developing a functional cultural identity expressed through a distinctly nationalistic musical idiom. Its ongoing formation, inspired by Australia's Aboriginal heritage and unique natural environment, seeks to distance the nation's artistic developments from the geographically remote Occidental regions and emphasize its native cultures. Presently, however, mounting sociopolitical and ethical concerns surrounding the cultural borrowing between Indigenous and non-Indigenous peoples are problematizing the developing nationalistic idiom as composers must determine whether the two groups share any legitimate connection beyond mere occupation of the same land given their tense post-colonial history. Musicologist Beatrice Dalov traces the formation of the Southern Lands cultural identity while simultaneously considering its complex relationship with the nation's First Peoples. She illuminates the origins, influences, and developments of Australian art music from colonization in the late eighteenth century to the present day, interweaving the social, cultural, political, and economic forces that shaped and often determined its evolution. The history demonstrates that the complex processes of articulating a unique cultural identity began almost immediately after arrival of the first colonists and continues uninterrupted through today. Drawing on newly available archival material, key works, and personally conducted interviews with numerous contemporary composers, Dalov traces the history of the land's music from scattered convict settlements and eventful contacts with Aboriginal peoples to the formation of a national musical infrastructure to today's thriving musical independence. She brings forward not only the most prominent composers and musicians of the last century but also those who laid a crucial foundation and offered the first contributions toward a national idiom. A comprehensive history of the music of the Great Southern Land has been too long neglected by social historians and musicologists worldwide. Beatrice Dalov sets the record straight. History Wars Stuart Macintyre, Anna Clark, 2013-05-31. The nation's history has probably never been more politicized than it is today. Politicians, journalists, columnists, academics, and Australians from all walks of life argue passionately and often ideologically about the significance of the national story, the cherished ideal of the fair go, the much-contested facts of Indigenous dispossession, the Anzac legend, and the nation's strategic alliance with the United States Historians have become both combatants and casualties in this war of words In The History Wars Stuart Macintyre and Anna Clark explore how this intense public debate has polarised the nation and paralysed history departments This edition includes a new afterword by Stuart Macintyre which recounts with rueful irony the outbreak of controversy that followed the book's original publication and the further light it shed on the uses and abuses of Australian history

Young People and the Shaping of Public Space in Melbourne, 1870-1914 Simon Sleight, 2016-02-11 Baby booms have a long history In 1870 colonial Melbourne was perspiring juvenile humanity with an astonishing 42 per cent of the city's inhabitants aged 14 and under a demographic anomaly resulting from the gold rushes of the 1850s Within this context Simon Sleight enters the heated debate concerning the future prospects of Young Australia and the place of the colonial child within the incipient Australian nation Looking beyond those institutional sites so often assessed by historians of childhood he ranges across the outdoor city to chart the relationship between a discourse about youth youthful experience and the shaping of new urban spaces Play street work consumerism courtship gang related activities and public parades are examined using a plethora of historical sources to reveal a hitherto hidden layer of city life Capturing the voices of young people as well as those of their parents Sleight alerts us to the ways in which young people shaped the emergent metropolis by appropriating space and attempting to impress upon the city their own desires Here a dynamic youth culture flourished well before the discovery of the teenager in the mid twentieth century here young people and the city grew up together
