Mind, Body, World Michael R. W. Dawson, 2013 Cognitive science arose in the 1950s when it became apparent that a number of disciplines including psychology computer science linguistics and philosophy were fragmenting Perhaps owing to the field's immediate origins in cybernetics as well as to the foundational assumption that cognition is information processing cognitive science initially seemed more unified than psychology However as a result of differing interpretations of the foundational assumption and dramatically divergent views of the meaning of the term information processing three separate schools emerged classical cognitive science connectionist cognitive science and embodied cognitive science Examples cases and research findings taken from the wide range of phenomena studied by cognitive scientists effectively explain and explore the relationship among the three perspectives Intended to introduce both graduate and senior undergraduate students to the foundations of cognitive science Mind Body World addresses a number of questions currently being asked by those practicing in the field What are the core assumptions of the three different schools What are the relationships between these different sets of core assumptions Is there only one cognitive science or are there many different cognitive sciences Giving the schools equal treatment and displaying a broad and deep understanding of the field Dawson highlights the fundamental tensions and lines of fragmentation that exist among the schools and provides a refreshing and unifying framework for students of cognitive science

LAWS, LANGUAGE and LIFE Howard Hunt Pattee, Joanna Rączaszek-Leonardi, 2012-12-09 Howard Pattee is a physicist who for many years has taken his own path in studying the physics of symbols which is now a foundation for biosemiotics By extending von Neumann's logical requirements for self replication to the physical requirements of symbolic instruction at the molecular level he concludes that a form of quantum measurement is necessary for life He explains why all non dynamic symbolic and informational controls act as special allosteric constraints on dynamical systems Pattee also points out that symbols do not exist in isolation but in coordinated symbol systems we call languages Such insights turn out to be necessary to situate biosemiotics as an objective scientific endeavor By proposing a way to relate quiescent symbolic constraints to dynamics Pattee's work builds a bridge between physical biological and psychological models that are based on dynamical systems theory Pattee's work awakes new interest in cognitive scientists where his recognition of the necessary separation the epistemic cut between the subject and object provides a basis for a complementary third way of relating the purely symbolic computational models of cognition and the purely dynamic non representational models This selection of Pattee's papers also addresses several other fields including hierarchy theory artificial life self organization complexity theory and the complementary epistemologies of the physical and biological
