Dependent-head Synthesis in Nivkh Johanna Mattissen, 2003-01-01 Dependent Head Synthesis in Nivkh has been awarded a prize of the Offermann Hergarten Donation at the University of Cologne in 2004 The endowments are granted for outstanding innovative and comprehensibly documented research This book offers an innovative approach to three interlaced topics A systematic analysis of the morphosyntactic organization of Nivkh Paleosiberian a cross linguistic investigation of complex noun forms parallel to complex polysynthetic verb forms and a typology of polysynthesis Nivkh Gilyak is linguistically remarkable because of its highly complex word forms both verbs and nouns They are formed productively from ad hoc concatenation of lexical roots in dependent head relations without further morphological marking primary object predicate attribute noun noun relational morpheme adposition After an in depth examination of the wordhood of such complexes the morphological type of Nivkh is explored against the background of polysynthesis noun incorporation verb root serialization noun complexes and head dependent marking For this purpose a new delimitation and classification of polysynthesis is proposed on the basis of an evaluation of 75 languages Besides contributing to a reconciliation of previous diametrically opposed approaches to polysynthesis this study challenges some common preconceived notions with respect to how languages should be

The Collected Works of Bronisław Piłsudski: The aborigines of Sakhalin Bronisław Piłsudski,1998 Historical Dictionary of Poland, 966-1945 Halina Lerski,1996-01-19 The first authoritative comprehensive historical dictionary of Poland in English this volume includes over 2 000 entries on people events places and terms important to Poland s history from 966 to 1945 Entries include English and Polish language bibliographic sources The student of Polish history seeking specific information on a person or event in medieval times the troubled era leading to the late 18th century partitions of Poland and the Polish nationalist struggles before 1919 reborn Poland in the interwar years or the trauma of World War II will be amply rewarded by the accurate concise information provided in this unique historical dictionary Each of the alphabetically arranged entries is followed by pertinent bibliographic sources in both English and Polish languages A list of abbreviations a note on the Polish alphabet and a series of historical maps precede the entries Helpful cross references are provided throughout the text and in the index A general bibliography precedes the index After five years of work George Lerski completed the original manuscript in 1992 shortly before his untimely death The special editing subsequently undertaken preparatory to publication has remained faithful to the original work its concept organization and purpose
