Building a National Literature Peter Uwe Hohendahl, 2016-11-01 Building a National Literature boldly takes issue with traditional literary criticism for its failure to explain how literature as a body is created and shaped by institutional forces Peter Uwe Hohendahl approaches literary history by focusing on the material and ideological structures that determine the canonical status of writers and works He examines important elements in the making of a national literature including the political and literary public sphere the theory and practice of literary criticism and the emergence of academic criticism as literary history Hohendahl considers such key aspects of the process in Germany as the rise of liberalism and nationalism the delineation of the borders of German literature the idea of its history the understanding of its cultural function and the notion of a canon of major and minor authors

Reading Cultures Molly Abel Travis, 1998 Molly Abel Travis unites reader theory with an analysis of historical conditions and various cultural contexts in this discussion of the reading and reception of twentieth century literature in the United States Travis moves beyond such provisional conclusions as the text produces the reader or the reader produces the text and considers the ways twentieth century readers and texts attempt to constitute and appropriate each other at particular cultural moments and according to specific psychosocial exigencies She uses the overarching concept of the reader in and out of the text both to differentiate the reader implied by the text from the actual reader and to discuss such in and out movements that occur in the process of reading as the alternation between immersion and interactivity and between role playing and unmasking Most reader theorists fix on the product of reading and exclude the process Travis notes which means they necessarily focus on the text Even theorists who argue for the reader's resistance make the text so determinant that they conceive of text and reader as discrete entities in a closed universe with these entities exerting force and counterforce respectively Missing in these accounts are wave and field theories concerned with such dynamic and contrastive effects as changes in the art of literary reading over historical periods and differences among readers in the context of a cultural field Travis seeks to fill gaps in current reader theories by focusing on process and difference Unlike most reader theorists Travis is concerned with the agency of the reader Her conception of agency in reading is informed by performance psychoanalytic and feminist theories This agency involves compulsive reiterative performance in which readers attempt to find themselves by going outside the self engaging in literary role playing in the hope of finally and fully identifying the self through self differentiation Furthermore readers never escape a social context they are both constructed and actively constructing in that they read as part of interpretive communities and are involved in collaborative creativity or what Kendall Walton calls collective imagining

Author Representations in Literary Reading Eefje Claassen, 2012-02-15 Author Representations in Literary Reading investigates the role of the author in the mind of the reader It is the first book length empirical study on generated author inferences by readers of literature It bridges the gap between theories which hold that the author is irrelevant and those that give him prominence By combining insights and methods from both cognitive psychology and literary theory this book contributes to a better understanding of how readers process literary texts and what role their assumptions about an author play A series of experiments demonstrate that readers generate author inferences during the process of reading which they use to create an image of the text's author The findings suggest that interpretations about the author play a pivotal role in the literary reading process This book is relevant to scholars and students in all areas of the cognitive sciences including literary studies and psychology

Sociological Insights of Great Thinkers Christofer R. Edling, Jens Rydgren, 2010-11-18 In this book leading sociologists expand the scope of their discipline by revealing the sociological aspects of the works of great philosophers scientists and writers Sociologists have long recognized that sociological insight can be gleaned from creative thinkers outside their formal discipline Sociological Insights of Great Thinkers Sociology through Literature Philosophy and Science captures and examines those insights in 32 essays that discuss scholars and writers not normally associated with any sociological school of thought Following a tradition of enriching the sociological toolkit by finding influence in philosophy and literature the volume's contributors an international group of renowned scholars eschew biography to focus solely on sociological interpretations that can be drawn from the work of many of history's preeminent thinkers Among the book's subjects are philosophers such as Aristotle Plato Kant and Cassirer scientists such as Darwin and Galileo and authors such as Kafka Proust and Shakespeare The essays not only allow readers to see such thinkers in a new light but underscore the fact that sociological questions have lain at the very heart of humanity throughout history

A Case for Teaching Literature in the Secondary School Janet Alsup, 2015-04-17 Taking a close look at the forces that affect English education in schools at the ways literature cognitive science the privileging of the STEM disciplines and current educational policies are connected this timely book counters with a strong argument for the importance of continuing to teach literature in middle and secondary classrooms The case is made through critical examination of the ongoing culture wars between the humanities and the sciences recent research in cognitive literary studies demonstrating the power of narrative reading and an analysis of educational trends that have marginalized literature teaching in the U S including standards based and scripted curricula The book is distinctive in presenting both a synthesis of arguments for literary study in the middle and high school and sample lesson plans from practicing teachers exemplifying how literature can positively influence adolescents intellectual emotional and social selves
