Can I sing with you?

The Boy Who Wanted To Sing:

The Boy who Wanted to Sing Andrew Montgomery, 1993 How High Should Boys Sing? Martin Ashley, 2016-04-29 A boy sings a beautiful thing www.boychoirs.org but is it What kinds of boy singing what kinds of music and to whom Martin Ashley presents a unique consideration of boys singing that shows the high voice to be historically culturally and physiologically more problematic even than is commonly assumed Through Ashley's extensive conversations with young performers and analysis of their reception by peer audiences the research reveals that the common supposition that boys don't want to sound like girls is far from adequate in explaining the missing males syndrome that can perplex choir directors The book intertwines the study of singing with the study of identity to create a rich resource for musicians scholars teachers and all those concerned with young male involvement in music through singing The conclusions of the book will challenge many attitudes and unconsidered positions through its argument that many boys actually want to sing but are discouraged by a failure of the adult world to understand the boy mind Ashley intends the book to stand as an indictment of much complacency and myopia with regard to the young male voice A substantial grant from the Arts and Humanities Research Council has enabled the production of a multi media resource for schools choirs and youth organizations called Boys Keep Singing Based on the contents of this book the resource shows how once the interest of boys is captured in primary schools their singing can be sustained and developed through the difficult but vital early secondary years of ages 11-14 about which this book says so much The resource is lavishly illustrated by short films of boys singing supported by interviews with boys and their teachers and a wealth of animated diagrams and cartoons It is available to schools and organizations involved in musical education through registration at www.boyskeepsinging.com

Blending the latest academic research with case studies of famous figures this highly insightful book presents doubt as a central concept for psychology. It is a concept which has been oddly neglected in the past despite its ubiquitous nature and far reaching influence. Exploring everything from self doubt and impostor syndrome to the weaponisation of doubt with respect to climate change and the marketing of cigarettes bestselling author Geoffrey Beattie navigates readers through the various ways doubt can start and develop changing the individual in the process. Written in Beattie's distinctive and engaging style, Doubt takes the reader into the lives of transformational thinkers, artists, scientists and writers to explore how and why doubt was crucial in their lives and how the likes of Kafka, Jung, Picasso and Turing succumbed to doubt or learned to control it. Beattie argues that doubt is central to the self; it can be either a safeguarding mechanism or a distraction, rational or irrational, systematic or random, healthy or pathological, productive or non-productive. The book helps readers to recognise how doubt may have been operating in their own lives and to identify how and when it has been used against us, for example to prevent climate action and at what personal and societal cost. Presenting a compelling case for why doubt cannot be ignored, this book is of major interest to academics from a wide range of disciplines including social and cognitive psychology, clinical and counselling psychology, sport psychology, sociology, business studies, politics, art and literature, as well as the general public who may well see something of themselves in its pages.

The Musical Times and Singing-class Circular, 1859

The Time of Our Singing Richard Powers, 2004-01-01

The last novel where I rooted for every character and the last to make me cry. Marlon James. Elle. From the Pulitzer Prize winning author of The Overstory and the Oprah's Book Club selection Bewilderment comes Richard Powers's magnificent multifaceted novel about a supremely gifted and divided family set against the backdrop of postwar America. On Easter day 1939 at Marian Anderson's epochal concert on the Washington Mall, David Strom, a German Jewish migr scientist, meets Delia Daley, a young Black Philadelphian studying to be a singer. Their mutual love of music draws them together and against all odds and their better judgment they marry. They vow to raise their children beyond time, beyond identity, steeped only in song. Jonah, Joseph and Ruth grow up, however, during the civil rights era, coming of age in the violent 1960s and living out adulthood in the racially retrenched late century. Jonah, the eldest, whose voice could make heads of state repent, follows a life in his parents' beloved classical music. Ruth, the youngest, devotes herself to community activism and repudiates the white culture her brother represents. Joseph, the middle child and the narrator of this generational bridging tale, struggles to find himself and remain connected to them both. Richard Powers's The Time of Our Singing is a story of self-invention, allegiance, race, cultural ownership, the compromised power of music and the tangled loops of time that rewrite all belonging.
