The Care of Old Buildings Today Donald William Insall, 1972 Guidelines for Rehabilitating Old Buildings United States. Department of Housing and Urban Development, United States. Office of Archeology and Historic Preservation, 1977

The care of old buildings today Donald W. Insall, 1973 Maintaining Historic Buildings, 1990 Conservation of Historic Buildings Bernard Feilden, 2007-06-07 Since its publication in 1982 Sir Bernard Feilden's Conservation of Historic Buildings has become the standard text for architects and others involved in the conservation of historic structures. Leading practitioners around the world have praised the book as being the most significant single volume on the subject to be published. This third edition revises and updates a classic book including completely new sections on conservation of Modern Movement buildings and non-destructive investigation. The result of the lifetime's experience of one of the world's leading architectural conservators, the book comprehensively surveys the fundamental principles of conservation in their application to historic buildings and provides the basic information needed by architects, engineers, and surveyors for the solution of problems of architectural conservation in almost every climatic region of the world. This edition is organized into three complementary parts: in the first, the structure of buildings is dealt with in detail; the second focuses attention on the causes of decay and the materials they affect; and the third considers the practical role of the architect involved in conservation and rehabilitation. As well as being essential reading for architects and others concerned with conservation, many lay people with various kinds of responsibility for historic buildings will find this clearly written, jargon-free work a fruitful source of guidance and information.

Rehabilitation of Historic Buildings Frederic Ellsworth Kleye, 1980 Northwold Manor Reborn Warwick Rodwell, 2024-08-15. Presents a fascinating, superbly illustrated account by one of the UK's leading architectural historians of the history, dereliction, and restoration of a complex, originally Tudor manor house. Northwold Manor is a multi-period listed building, grade II, about which almost nothing was known. Uninhabited since 1955, it had fallen into a state of extreme dereliction and was beyond economic repair when the author purchased the property in 2014. He and his wife Diane Gibbs embarked on a major restoration that ran for nine years. The restoration was carried out as a quasi-archaeological operation, revealing that the building complex had Tudor origins, followed by the construction of a Stuart house with Georgian improvements, and a new entertaining suite added in 1814. The Manor, with its fine drawing room, ballroom, and orangery, was the grandest house in Northwold, and research into the families that occupied it revealed unexpected connections to the French Bourbon Court. From the 17th to the 20th century, the Carters were the principal owners, and a local branch of the family included Howard Carter, discoverer of Tutankhamen's tomb. This account begins with a topographical study of Northwold and its three medieval manors, followed by an exploration of the decline of the Carter family in the late 19th century. That triggered the break-up of the Northwold Estate in 1919. Passing through several ownerships, the Manor was earmarked for demolition in 1961. Reprieved, it became a furniture store in the 1970s, and every room was solidly packed. As the roofs failed and water poured in ceilings and floors collapsed carrying with them the stacks of rotting furniture By the late 1990s walls and gables were collapsing too and the local authority attempted to intervene A long struggle to save the Manor ensued finally ending with compulsory purchase in 2013 Although manor houses occur in most English parishes they have received surprisingly little archaeological study Every year hundreds are restored or altered but rarely accompanied by detailed recording or scholarly research and popular television programs reveal the shameful level of destruction that takes place in the name of restoration This is a book like no other the holistic approach to the rehabilitation of Northwold s derelict manor house involving history archaeology architecture and genealogy demonstrates how much can be learned about a building that had never before been studied The project has received several awards
