education in the pre Brown v Board of Education era Under the Plessy v Ferguson decision decades earlier southern states could provide graduate opportunities for African Americans by creating separate but equal graduate programs at tax supported Black colleges or by admitting Black students to historically white institutions Most did neither and instead paid to send Black students out of state for graduate education Crystal R Sanders examines Black graduate students who relocated to the North Midwest and West to continue their education with segregation scholarships revealing the many challenges they faced along the way Students that entered out of state programs endured long and tedious travel financial hardship racial discrimination isolation and homesickness With the passage of Brown in 1954 segregation scholarships began to wane but the integration of graduate programs at southern public universities was slow In telling this story Sanders demonstrates how white efforts to preserve segregation led to the underfunding of public Black colleges furthering racial inequality in American higher education
