So Vast The Prison:

So Vast the Prison Assia Djébar, 2001-05-01 So Vast the Prison is the double threaded story of a modern educated Algerian woman existing in a man's society and not surprisingly living a life of contradictions Djébar too tackles cross cultural issues just by writing in French of an Arab society the actual act of writing contrasting with the strong oral traditions of the indigenous culture as a woman who has seen revolution in a now post colonial country and as an Algerian living in exile In this new novel Djébar brilliantly plays these contradictions against the bloody history of Carthage a great civilization the Berbers were once compared to and makes it both a tribute to the loss of Berber culture and a meeting point of culture and language As the story of one woman's experience in Algeria it is a private tale but one embedded in a vast history A radically singular voice in the world of literature Assia Djébar's work ultimately reaches beyond the particulars of Algeria to embrace in stark yet sensuous language the universal themes of violence intimacy ostracism victimization and exile So Vast the Prison Assia Djébar, 2002 Vaste est la prison Assia Djébar, 1995 We Are Imazighen Fazia Aïtel, 2014-11-04 To the world they are known as Berbers but they prefer to call themselves Imazighen or free people The claim to this unique cultural identity has been felt most acutely in Algeria in the Kabylia region where an Amazigh consciousness gradually emerged after WWII This is a valuable model for other Amazigh movements in North Africa where the existence of an Amazigh language and culture is denied or dismissed in countries such as Morocco Algeria Tunisia and Libya By tracing the cultural production of the Kabyle people their songs oral traditions and literature from the early 1930s to the end of the twentieth century Fazia Aïtel shows how they have defined their own culture over time both within Algeria and in its diaspora She analyzes the role of Amazigh identity in the works of novelists such as Mouloud Feraoun Tahar Djaout and Assia Djébar and she investigates the intersection of Amazigh consciousness and the Beur movement in France She also addresses the political and social role of the Kabyles in Algeria and in France where after independence it was easier for the Berber community to express and organize itself Ultimately Aïtel argues that the Amazigh literary tradition is founded on dual priorities the desire to foster a genuine dialogue while retaining a unique culture Contemporary Fiction in French Anna-Louise Milne, Russell Williams, 2021-03-25 Our global literary field is fluid and exists in a state of constant evolution Contemporary fiction in French has become a polycentric and transnational field of vibrant and varied experimentation the collapse of the distinction between French and Francophone literature has opened up French writing to a world of new influences and interactions In this collection renowned scholars provide thoughtful close readings of a whole range of genres from graphic novels to crime fiction to the influence of television and film to analyse modern French fiction in its historical and sociological context Allowing students of contemporary French literature and culture to situate specific works within broader trends the volume provides an engaging global and timely overview of contemporary fiction writing in French and demonstrates how our modern literary world is more complex and diverse than ever before In the Dark Room Rosanna

Maule, Julie Beaulieu, 2009 This book examines Duras's contribution to contemporary cinema The dark room in the collection's title refers to one of Duras's metaphors for the writing process la chambre noire as the solitary space of literary creation the place where she struggles to project her internal shadow onto the blank page The dark room is also a metaphor for the film theater and by extension for the filmic experience Duras rejected conventional forms of cinematic address that encourage the spectator to develop a positive identification with the film's diegesis and narrative Her films create unusual rapports between image and sound diegetic and extra diegetic elements and textual and intertextual dimensions of cinematic representation In doing so they allow the film spectator to establish new connections with the screen This collection focuses on the aesthetic conceptual and political challenges involved in Duras's innovative approach to cinematic representation from an interdisciplinary perspective including film and literary theory psychoanalytic analysis music theory gender studies and post colonial criticism The book opens with a theoretical introduction to Duras's cinematic practice and its peculiar position in contemporary cinema and contemporary film theory and is divided into five parts each one devoted to a specific aspect of Duras's films the interaction between literature and cinema Part One the reconfiguration of the cinematic gaze Part Two and of the image sound relation Part Three the representation of history and memory Part Four and of cultural identity Part Five
