Growing Up in a Changing Society Ronnie Carr,Paul Light,Martin Woodhead,2014-02-04 The final reader in the Child Development in Social Context series shows how the study of child development is inevitably bound up in more ephemeral cultural ideas about the nature and needs of children and in the educational practices that rise from these ideas Some readings point to the dangers which can arise from the meeting of science and cultural values using for illustration studies of the role of psychological theory in reinforcing social attitudes to child care inside and outside the family Other readings look at children s initiation into that relatively recent cultural invention the school and the relationship with their learning at home There are studies of their social development in classroom and playground with particular emphasis on ethnic relationships

Social Theory For A Changing Society Pierre Bourdieu, James S. Coleman, Zdzislaw Walaszek Coleman, 2019-07-11 There is in modern society a structural change that underlies many of the social changes with which the conference was concerned My argument here will be that this is a qualitative change in the way society is organized a change with many implications I will call this a change from primordial and spontaneous social organization to constructed social organization see Coleman 1990 Chapters 2 3 and 24 for an extended examination of this change The common definitions of these terms contain some hint of what I mean but I will describe the change more fully to ensure that it is clearly understood By primordial social organization I mean social organization that has its origins in the relationships established by childbirth Not all these relations are activated in all cultures but some subset of these relations forms the basis for all primitive and traditional social organization From these relations more complex structures unfold For example from these relations come families from families come clans from clans villages and from villages tribes ethnicities or societies

Encounters | Materialities | Confrontations Per Cornell, Fredrik Fahlander, 2009-01-14 This collection of texts is a first step towards providing a theoretical and methodological platform for the study of social encounters The social encounter is a particular sort of concept focusing on confusion tension trauma and possibly social change that may emerge in situations of contact when people and things interact A social encounter is however not only about negotiation or contemplating existence but is rather about what happens when people interact actively when they involve themselves with people and materialities when they move around fetch things use things leave things etc The repeated social encounter is often a confrontation with something such as an opinion a performance or with materialities and the effects are often unpredictable Encounters may reproduce a social pattern but also contain potential for transformation and change Such varied responses to encounters will certainly have effects on the archaeological record The primary focus of the volume is the effects and processes involved in intra and inter societal encounters The collection hence fills a theoretical and methodological gap in the study of the encounter in archaeology There is a need for elaborating aspects of postcolonial theory in order to develop new ways of approaching the archaeological record The articles of this volume include examples from various regions and time periods They range from Scandinavian Stone Age through Buddhist social practices of the first millennium AD Maya warfare and ideology to Aboriginal European encounters in 20th century Australia Per Cornell PhD Ass Prof is currently lecturer at the Department of archaeology University of Gothenburg Cornell has been involved in extensive field work in Latin America and current research topics include settlement archaeology formation processes and social theory Among his recent books are Local Regional Global co edited with Per Stenborg Gotarc 2004 Exploring Social Change Charles L.
