The Building Of Railways In Cheshire Down To 1860:

The Building of Railways in Cheshire Down to 1860 Herbert James Hewitt, 1972 The World's First Railway System Mark Casson, 2009-09-10 The British railway network was a monument to Victorian private enterprise Its masterpieces of civil engineering were emulated around the world But its performance was controversial praised for promoting a high density of lines it was also criticised for wasteful duplication of routes This is the first history of the British railway system written from a modern economic perspective It uses counterfactual analysis to construct an alternative network to represent the most efficient alternative rail network that could have been constructed given what was known at the time the first time this has been done It reveals how weaknesses in regulation and defects in government policy resulted in enormous inefficiency in the Victorian system that Britain lives with today British railway companies developed into powerful regional monopolies which then contested each other's territories When denied access to existing lines in rival territories they built duplicate lines instead Plans for an integrated national system sponsored by William Gladstone were blocked by Members of Parliament because of a perceived conflict with the local interests they represented Each town wanted more railways than its neighbours and so too many lines were built The costs of these surplus lines led ultimately to higher fares and freight charges which impaired the performance of the economy The book will be the definitive source of reference for those interested in the economic history of the British railway system It makes use of a major new historical source deposited railway plans integrates transport and local history through its regional analysis of the railway system and provides a comprehensive classified bibliography The Industrial Archaeology of North-west England Owen Ashmore, 1982

Remains, Historical and Literary, Connected with the Palatine Counties of Lancaster and Chester, 1982 Birkenhead Park Robert Lee, 2024-04-15 When it was officially opened on Easter Monday 5 April 1847 Birkenhead Park became the first municipally funded park in Britain It was a pioneer in the development of urban public parks designed for use by everyone irrespective of social class ethnicity or age In terms of town planning it demonstrated the importance of including green infrastructure in urban development as a vital contribution to public health and well being Paxton's design for the park was heralded as a masterpiece of human creative genius it served as a vehicle for the global transmission of the English landscape school and led to the creation of numerous public parks everywhere most famously Central Park New York incorporating many of Paxton's design features This book addresses a long standing gap in the Park's historiography Regarded as one of the greatest wonders of the age the Park is an important contribution to nineteenth century landscape history with a local focus but of international significance The book also seeks to interpret the Park's development until 1914 within a political and cultural context drawing on economic and social history as a means of explaining why it was not until the late nineteenth century that it finally became a focal point for recreation and public health The Industrial Archaeology and Industrial History of the English Midlands John Greenwood, 1987 A New Historical Atlas of Cheshire A.
