Harpelle, 2010-09-07 The book focuses on the International Development Research Centre as a unique institution that has funded research in the developing South research proposed and undertaken by Southern researchers and how as a result it has had tremendous impact despite a relatively small budget The IDRC is much better known in the developing South than in Canada in many of the roughly 150 countries in which it has provided research funding it has contributed to creating a very positive image of Canada The centre's arms length relationship with Canadian government assistance provides it with enormous freedom and flexibility it was established in 1970 with its own act under the Trudeau government The IDRC board is one half international and one half Canadian and is the only governmental agency in the world that has this structure giving them unique insight into Southern development issues One of the IDRC's founding principles was its insistence on having Southern researchers decide which projects would be put forward for possible funding and much care has been taken to avoid research imperialism or colonialism An analysis of the path less travelled but which IDRC found amenable is fundamental to this history of the centre and the book highlights the decisions ideas and practices that flow from this basic premise
