Continental Powers and Naval Development Brian C. Chao, 2025-10-16 This book examines how continental great powers have attempted to develop and wield strong navies since 1801 Continental Powers and Naval Development argues that a continental great power's ability to build and effectively use a strong navy is greatly affected by two factors a naval force design capable of executing national strategy strategy coherence and the deployment of that navy to places or for purposes that minimize the dominant naval power's threat perception threat diffusion Each factor is deceptively difficult for a continental great power to achieve but through an analysis of four historical case studies this book shows how both factors are vital not just for successful naval development but for keeping the peace among great powers Finally it highlights how states commonly thought of as unnatural naval powers can nonetheless achieve their political objectives at sea This book will be of much interest to students of naval history maritime strategy and International Relations The USSR and Iraq Oles M. Smolansky,1991 In The USSR and Iraq the first major study of Soviet Iraqi relations Oles M Smolansky examines the history of the relationship between these two countries during the past twenty years and attempts to dispel the misconception that the Soviet Union has enjoyed undue influence over Iraq Drawing on ten years of research in Western Arab and Soviet sources Smolansky analyzes the complex issues at the center of Soviet Iraqi relations from 1968 through 1988 including the nationalization of the oil industry the Kurdish question the Iraqi Communist Party the affairs of the Persian Arabian Gulf and ultimately the war between Iraq and Iran Smolansky concludes that Iraq has never been under the dominant influence of Moscow nor has it even been a loyal Soviet ally In fact Iraq has managed to reap major benefits from the relationship without losing its autonomy or sacrificing its major interests The author discusses the Soviet Union and Iraq within the larger framework of the nature of influence relationships between great and small powers Algeria, a Country Study American University (Washington, D.C.).
