The Medicine-Men of the Apache (Classic Reprint) John Gregory Bourke, 2017-11-22 Excerpt from The Medicine Men of the Apache: The Caucasian population of the United States has been in intimate contact with the aborigines for a period of not less than two hundred and fifty years. In certain sections as in Florida and New Mexico, this contact has been for a still greater period, but claiming no earlier date than the settlement of New England, it will be seen that the white race has been slow to learn or the red man has been skillful in withholding knowledge which if imparted would have lessened friction and done much to preserve and assimilate a race that in spite of some serious defects of character will for all time to come be looked upon as the noble savage.
