Hymowitz,2008-06-30 Children today grow up so fast How often we hear those words uttered both in frustrated good humor and in dumbfounded astonishment Every day the American people hear about kids doing things both good and bad that were once thought to be well beyond their scope flying airplanes running companies committing mass murder Creatures of the information age today s children sometimes seem to know more than their parents They surf the Internet rather than read books they watch South Park instead of The Cosby Show they wear form fitting capri pants and tank tops instead of sundresses in short they are sophisticated beyond their years These facts lead us to wonder Is childhood becoming extinct In Ready or Not Kay S Hymowitz offers a startling new interpretation of what makes our children tick and where the moral anomie of today s children comes from She reveals how our ideas about childrearing itself have been transformed perniciously in reponse to the theories of various experts educators psychologists lawyers media executives who have encouraged us to view children as small adults autonomous actors who know what is best for themselves and who have no need for adult instruction or supervision Today's children and teenagers have been encouraged by their parents and teachers to function as individuals to such an extent that they make practically every decision on their own what to wear what to study and even what values they will adhere to The idea of childhood as a time of limited competence in which adults prepare the young for maturity has fallen into disrepute independence has become not the reward of time but rather something that our children have come to expect and demand at increasingly younger ages One of the great ironies of turning our children into small adults is that American society has become less successful at producing truly mature men and women When sophisticated children do grow up they often find themselves unable to accept real adult responsibilities Thus we see more people in their twenties and thirties living like children unwilling to embark on careers or to start families Until we recognize that children are different from grownups and need to be nurtured as such Hymowitz argues our society will be hollow at its core

Network Epidemiology Martina Morris, 2004-03-18 Over the past two decades the epidemic of HIV AIDS has challenged the public health community to fundamentally rethink the framework for preventing infectious diseases While much progress has been made on the biomedical front in treatments for HIV infection prevention still relies on behaviour change This book documents and explains the remarkable breakthroughs in behavioural research design that have emerged to confront this new challenge the study of partnership networks Traditionally public health research focused on the knowledge attitudes and practices KAP of individuals an approach designed for understanding health related behaviour like seat belt wearing and cigarette smoking For HIV and other sexually transmitted infections however there are at least two people involved in transmission This may not seem like a big difference but in fact it changes everything First it means that your risk depends on your partners and on their partners and their partners it depends on your position in the network of partnerships Consider for example the rise of infections among monogamous women Second it means that individuals are not free to simply change their behaviour condom use or abstinence needs to be negotiated with a partner both the epidemiology of risk and constraints to behaviour are therefore a function of the partnership network And our ability to design effective prevention strategies depends on our ability to measure and summarize that network Using the traditional research designs you would not see this network at all you would only see the unconnected nodes The key to solving this problem lies in Network Analysis before now a relatively obscure subfield in Sociology For empirical studies of networks to become feasible however many problems had to be solved This book documents the rapid progress that has been made It brings together eight pioneering studies that have sought to map the networks that spread infection around the world Each chapter reviews the questions that drove the study the changes in methodology that were needed to implement the network survey the mistakes and successes encountered and the central findings that the network design made possible An introduction provides an overview of network survey design a glossary provides a summary of network terminology and example questionnaires from each study provide a template for further research This is a unique and valuable resource for the international public

The series charts changes in British social values with annual surveys carried out from a nationwide sample of around 3 500 people by the National Centre for Social Research's team of interviewers. The 18th Report summarizes and interprets data from the most recent survey and makes comparisons with findings from previous years. The Rolls Royce of opinion surveys. The Times

Adverse Childhood Experiences Roberta Waite, Ruth Ryan, 2019-08-09 This guide provides healthcare students and professionals with a foundational background on adverse childhood experiences (ACEs), traumatic early life experiences which can have a profound impact on health in later life. ACEs can include being a victim of abuse, neglect, or exposure to risk in the home or community. How healthcare students and professionals learn to recognize, react, and respond to persons affected by trauma will lay the foundation for their relationships with patients. This book intentionally uses micro to macro lenses accompanied by a structural competency framework to elucidate health implications across the lifespan. It explores the nature of adversity and its effects on the physical, emotional, cognitive, and social health of individuals, communities, and society. The book, written by two experienced psychiatric nurses, will equip healthcare students and professionals with an understanding for critical change in practice and offer action steps designed to assist them with prevention and intervention approaches and steps to help build resilience. This book will be core reading for healthcare students within mental health, pediatric, and primary care nursing courses. It will also be of interest to students and professionals in the social work, psychology, and public health fields who are exploring resilience and trauma-informed practices.

Delinquency in Society Regoli, John D. Hewitt, Matt DeLisi, 2016-08-15 Delinquency in Society, Tenth Edition, provides a comprehensive and systematic overview of juvenile delinquency, criminal behavior, and status-offending youths.

Family and HIV/AIDS Willo Pequegnat, Carl Bell, 2011-10-22 Three decades into the HIV pandemic, the goals remain clear: reduce the number of infections, improve the health outcomes of those who are infected, and eliminate disparities in care. And one observation continues to gain credence: families are a powerful resource in preventing, adapting to, and coping with HIV. Recognizing their complex role as educators, mentors, and caregivers, Family and HIV/AIDS assembles a wealth of findings from successful prevention and intervention strategies and provides models for translating evidence into effective real-world practice. Chapters spotlight the differing roles of mothers and fathers in prevention efforts, clarify the need for family-community collaborations, and examine core issues of culture, ethnicity, gender, and diagnosis, e.g., minority families, adolescents with psychological disorders. Throughout, risk reduction and health promotion are shown as a viable public health strategy. A reference with considerable utility across the health, mental health, and related disciplines, Family and HIV/AIDS will be a go-to resource for practitioners working with families, researchers studying at-risk populations, administrators seeking to create new or evaluate existing prevention and care programs, and policymakers.
