Soviet Foreign Policy in Transition Roger E. Kanet, Deborah N. Miner, Tamara J. Resler, 1992-04-02 The late twentieth century witnessed remarkable changes in Soviet domestic and foreign policy Eastern Europe sprang free of the country that held it in its grip for over forty years The Soviet leadership has accepted the reunification of Germany and supported the US sponsored resolution in the UN permitting the use of force in the Gulf against one of its former allies

The Nordic Way Edward L. Killham, 1993 This analysis of the delicate Nordic Balance and the role it has played in recent history is an excellent introduction to the study of Soviet policy in Scandinavia It focuses on the history of mutual entanglement among the Slavs Germans and Nordic peoples in peace as well as in war The Nordic Balance meant that the NATO membership of Norway Denmark and Iceland was balanced by Finland's security relationship with Russia while Sweden's armed neutrality acted as a buffer between the Eastern and Western spheres of influence The concept embodied a tacit recognition by all parties that this balance was stable and that any attempt to tilt it would meet a corresponding reaction from the other side

The Nordic Countries: From War to Cold War, 1944-51 Tony Insall, Patrick Salmon, 2011-02-25 This book is a collection of diplomatic documents describing the development of British relations with the Nordic countries between the end of the Second World War and the defeat of the Labour Government in 1951 The end of the Second World War brought hopes of building a new society in Western Europe This volume documents Foreign Office concerns about the range of problems both multilateral and bilateral which still remained to be resolved in the Nordic area and describes the evolution of policies to deal with them The Soviet Union which in May 1945 already occupied parts of Norway and Denmark and dominated Finland was perceived as a growing threat The Nordic region was considered to be of significant strategic importance during this period The documents describe the process whereby Britain attempted to encourage Scandinavian countries away from their support for neutrality and by enlisting American support began the process which led to the signature of the Atlantic Treaty in 1949 signed by Norway Denmark and Iceland They also include material describing the establishment of Information Research Department formed to counteract Soviet propaganda and illustrating some of its methods Some documents not previously in the public domain have been declassified for this volume Most are drawn from the archives of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office but there are also a number of Prime Ministerial and Cabinet Office documents This book will be of much interest to students of the Cold War European history British political history international history and IR in general The Concept of Neutrality in Stalin's Foreign Policy, 1945-1953 Peter Ruggenthaler, 2015-07-02 Drawing on recently declassified Soviet archival sources this book sheds new light on how the division of Europe came about in the aftermath of World War II The book contravenes the notion that a neutral zone of states including Germany could have been set up between East and West The Soviet Union under Joseph Stalin was determined to preserve control over its own sphere of German territory By tracing Stalin's attitude toward neutrality in international politics the book provides important insights into the origins of the Cold War The European Union and the Nordic Countries Lee Miles, 2005-06-28 The team of authors including academics from all five main Nordic countries provides an authoritative assessment of the intricate relationship between the EU and the Nordic countries The Nordic Countries in the Early Cold War, 1944-51 Tony Insall, 2011 This book is a collection of diplomatic documents describing the development of British relations with the Nordic countries between the end of the Second World War and the defeat of the Labour Government in 1951 The end of the Second World War brought hopes of building a new society in Western Europe This volume documents Foreign Office concerns about the range of problems both multilateral and bilateral which still remained to be resolved in the Nordic area and describes the evolution of policies to deal with them The Soviet Union which in May 1945 already occupied parts of Norway and Denmark and dominated Finland was perceived as a growing threat The Nordic region was considered to be of significant strategic importance during this period The documents describe the process whereby Britain attempted to encourage Scandinavian countries away from their support for neutrality and by enlisting American support began the process which led to the signature of the Atlantic Treaty in 1949 signed by Norway Denmark and Iceland They also include material describing the establishment of Information Research Department formed to counteract Soviet propaganda and illustrating some of its methods Some documents not previously in the public domain have been declassified for this volume Most are drawn from the archives of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office but there are also a number of Prime Ministerial and Cabinet Office documents This book will be of much interest to students of the Cold War European history British political history international history and IR in general NATO's Northern Allies Gregory Flynn, 2021-01-26 This book first published in 1985 analyses the choices made by NATO's northern allies during the 1970s and 80s as well as the factors that produced these choices Each country study investigates the historical background of the decision to align the existence of specific enduring security preferences and the way in which these have to the extent they have been reconciled in policy The studies then examine defence policy priorities during tranquil periods detail the factors responsible for promoting change in the way each country has formulated security priorities and look at the way in which disputes have been played out in domestic political life Finally the studies analyse the broad outline of future priorities at the end of the Cold War
