

Referéndum de la Unión Soviética de 1991

El domingo 17 de marzo de 1991 se celebró un referéndum sobre el futuro de la Unión Soviética con la siguiente pregunta para los votantes:

Считаете ли Вы необходимым сохранение Союза Советских Социалистических Республик как обновлённой федерации равноправных суверенных республик, в которой будут в полной мере гарантироваться права и свободы человека любой национальности.

¿Considera necesario preservar la Unión de Repúblicas Socialistas Soviéticas como una federación renovada de repúblicas soberanas iguales en la que se garantizarán plenamente los derechos y libertades de una persona de cualquier nacionalidad?

El referéndum se hizo con el objetivo de aprobar el Nuevo Tratado de la Unión y fue ajeno a la reforma del sistema económico, cuestión que se llevaría a cabo tras la victoria de Boris Yeltsin en las elecciones presidenciales rusas de junio.

En Kazajistán se cambió la redacción del referéndum sustituyendo «Estados soberanos iguales» por «repúblicas soberanas iguales».¹ Aunque la votación fue boicoteada por las autoridades de Armenia, Estonia, Georgia (aunque no en la provincia separatista de Abjasia, donde el resultado fue más de un 98 % a favor,² ni en Osetia del Sur³), Letonia, Lituania, Moldavia (aunque no en Transnistria y Gagauzia),⁴ la participación fue del 80 % en la URSS.¹ El referéndum fue aprobado por al menos el 70 % de los votantes en las otras nueve repúblicas que

Sovietica Monographs Of The Inst:

The Library Catalogs of the Hoover Institution on War, Revolution, and Peace, Stanford University Hoover Institution on War, Revolution, and Peace, 1969 Mao Tse-Tung's Theory of Dialectic F.Y.K. Soo, 2012-12-06 The year 1979 ushered in a new phase in China's long and continuous revolution. Currently this new phase is being symbolically referred to by the Chinese leaders themselves as the New Long March, a continuation of the legendary and historical Long March in terms of modernization which comprises the Four Modernizations: Agriculture, Industry, Science and Technology, and Military Defense. Such an all-encompassing attempt at modernization may appear to some at least to be something new or may indicate a radical shift in her policy. But upon closer examination this decision seems only to reflect an historical continuity in terms of the two major long-term goals of the Chinese Revolution: national independence and modernization or industrialization. The former would make China strong; the latter wealthy. For ever since the Opium War in 1840 and throughout the Revolutions of 1911 and 1949, China has always pursued these two revolutionary goals, though with different emphases at different times. This has been especially true during the past three decades as this twofold goal has dictated all of China's important policies, both domestic and foreign. In other words, while the concrete policies may have appeared to be lacking in unity at times, they have been formulated with the specific intent of achieving national independence and modernization. From this perspective, the New Long March marks the passage of post-Mao China beyond the transition of succession toward the continued pursuit of the same revolutionary goals. Dominion and Wealth D.C. Kline, 2012-12-06 Donna Kline's contribution to the Sovietica series falls outside the strict confines of the study of Soviet Marxism-Leninism. It centers its attention on the seemingly minor question of Marx's knowledge of and attitude toward the legal theory and practice in vogue at the time he was writing, studies that directly addressed issues of law and economics and that indirectly helped to fashion the legal and economic behavior of Soviet-style regimes. That this question is not as minor or as irrelevant to Marxism-Leninism as it might seem at first glance flows from Marx's obvious intent to do a thorough critique of all the vectors of bourgeois capitalist civilization and culture, clearly expressed in the many key texts where legal relations form at least part of the central focus. Marx thought was forming when the bourgeois law that had become self-conscious at the end of the 18th century was following the French Revolution, trying to take possession of the social-political consciousness of European American culture and finding itself coming up against the vagaries of economic quasi-anarchy. There is a sense in which the bourgeois capitalist efforts at developing a legal code for existing economic practice represent a sort of ideology in practice to be applied to the same phenomena that Marx wanted to account for in his peculiarly Hegelian ideological critique. Marxism and Religion in Eastern Europe R.T. De George, Robert H. Scanlan, 2012-12-06 Since the Bolshevik revolution of 1917, two of the most significant but at the same time least understood areas of that revolution's cultural impact have been philosophy and religion. The impact has, of course, been massive, not only in the Soviet Union but after the second World War in Soviet dominated Eastern Europe as well Yet the consequences of Communism for philosophy and religion throughout the Soviet orbit are far from having the simplicity suggested by the stereotypes of a single monolithic Marxism and a consistent crushing assault on the Church and on religious faith Unquestionably Marxism is the ruling philosophy throughout Eastern Europe In the Soviet Union Marxism Leninism or dialectical materialism is the official and the only tolerated philosophy and most of the other countries of Eastern Europe follow the Soviet lead in philosophy as in other fields But in the latter countries Marxism was imposed only after World War II and its development has not always copied the Soviet model Original thinkers in Yugoslavia Czechoslovakia Poland and Hungary have thought their own way through the writings of Marx and his followers and have arrived at Marxist positions which are considerably at variance with the Soviet interpretations and often with each other Moreover in recent years the Soviet philosophers themselves have been unable to ignore the theoretical questions raised by the other East of Marxism in the West

Vladimir Solovyev and Max Scheler: Attempt at a Comparative Interpretation Helmut Dahm, 2012-12-06 This comparative study of the works of Vladimir Solovyev and Max Scheler explores some of the areas in which their thoughts seem to bear a direct relation to one another The author shows however that such a correlation is not based on any factual influence of the earlier Russian on the later philosophy of Scheler The similarities in their spiritual and philosophical development are significant as the author demonstrates in his chapter on systematic philosophy This comparison is not just of historical interest It is meant to contribute to a better understanding between the East and the West The author provides a basis for future discussions by establishing a common area of inquiry and by demonstrating a convergence of viewpoints already in regard to these problems The author also discusses the potential role of the ideas of Solovyev and Scheler in the formation of a consciousness which he sees now emerging in the Soviet Union a consciousness critical of any misrepresentation both of non Marxist Russian philosophy as well as of Western philosophy in general In regard to the translation itself three things should be mentioned First of all the distinction between the important German words Sein and Seiendes is often difficult to preserve in translation Unless otherwise noted all references to being refer to Seiendes Second the abbreviations of the works of Solovyev and Scheler used in the footnotes are clarified in the summary of the works of these authors found on page 31 Off below

Themes in Soviet Marxist Philosophy J.E.

Blakeley, 2012-12-06 The Soviet philosophical scene has experienced remarkable growth since the innovations of the 50 s and the renovations of the 60 s This volume of Sovietica is intended by the editors as a finger on the pulse of the Marxist Leninist corpus philosophicum as we enter the 1970 s Published in the years between 1960 and 1970 the Filosofskaja enciklopedija FE has replaced the Kratkij filosofskij slovar Short Philosophic Dictionary 1939 1941 1951 and 1954 and the Filosofskij slovar Philosophic Dictionary 1963 It is an impressive work 2994 pages in five volumes I 1960 504 pp II 1962 575 pp III 1964 584 pp IV 1967 591 pp V 1970 740 pp with the editors and authors representing all the contemporary Soviet philosophers of note The FE has been extensively reviewed in Kommunist 1972 5 119 127 and in Studies in Soviet Thought beginning with

SST 12 1972 4 Restrictions of space have forced us to omit much that was originally to be included The same limitations have obliged us to deviate from the initial methodological rule which was to include only complete un abridged articles in order to avoid distortion by selection Only two articles have been shortened only the basic portion of science has been included we have dropped natural science sciences on man and society and classification of sciences a total of thirteen pages in Russian this last with regret and with apologies to Professor Kedrov Lukács Today I Rockmore,2012-12-06 As this century nears an end it has become increasingly clear that Georg Lukacs is one of the most talented intellectuals of our time not only in the Marxist tradition but in general Lukacs name is well known and his views are increasingly attracting attention but it cannot be said that his thought has so far been widely studied or that it has been studied to the degree its place in the Marxist tradition warrants or its intrinsic interest demands In the relatively short period since Lukacs death there have been a number of books and many articles devoted to his work But despite some efforts in that direction there is still no adequate treatment of his work as a whole surely a formidable task If as I believe Lukacs is the most important Marxist philosopher since Marx and one of the most influential intellectual figures of this century then surely his ideas are worth scrutinizing frequently and in detail This is not the place to provide a general description either of Lukacs life or of his work Descriptions of his life especially his early career are widely available For present purposes it will suffice to provide only the barest mention of some biographical facts together with a brief account of some items in his bibliography Marxism and Alternatives I Rockmore,W.J. Gavin,J.G. Colbert Jr.,J.E. Blakeley,2012-12-06 Contemporary philosophy is by its nature pluralistic to a perhaps greater extent than at any moment of the preceding tradition in that there are multiple forms of thought competing for a position on the center of the philosophic stage The reasons for this conceptual proliferation are numerous But certainly one factor is the increasing development of contemporary means of publication and communication which in turn make possible the rapid dissemination of ideas as well as an informed reaction to them And this in turn has increased the possibility for serious philosophic exchange by enhancing the available opportunities for the interaction of competing forms of thought But although informed philosophic interaction has in principle become increasingly possible in recent years the frequency scope and quality of such discussion has often been less than satisfactory Contemporary philosophic viewpoints tend not to interact in a Hegelian manner as complementary aspects of a totally satisfactory and a perspectival view facets of a singly and all embracing true position Rather contemporary philosophic viewpoints tend to portray themselves as mutually exclusive alternatives only occasionally willing to acknowledge the possible validity or even the intrinsic interest of other perspectives Thus although the multiplication of different forms of philosophy in principle means that there are greater possibilities for meaning ful exchange between them in practice the tendency of each of the various philosophic positions to raise claims to philosophic truth from its point of view alone has had the effect of impeding such interaction Philosophical Sovietology Helmut Dahm,J.E. Blakeley,George L. Kline,2012-12-06 On February 24 25

1956 in a closed session of the 20th Congress of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union Nikita S Khrushchev made his now famous speech on the crimes of the Stalin era That speech marked a break with the past and it marked the end of what J M Bochenski dubbed the dead period of Soviet philosophy Soviet philosophy changed abruptly after 1956 especially in the area of dialectical materialism Yet most philosophers in the West neither noticed nor cared For them the resurrection of Soviet philosophy even if believable was of little interest The reasons for the lack of belief and interest were multiple Soviet philosophy had been dull for so long that subtle differences made little difference The Cold War was in a frigid period and reinforced the attitude of avoiding anything Soviet Phenomenology and existentialism were booming in Europe and analytic philosophy was king on the Anglo American philosophical scene Moreover not many philosophers in the West knew or could read Russian or were motivated to learn it to be able to read Soviet philosophical works The launching of Sputnik awakened the West from its self complacent slumbers Academic interest in the Soviet Union grew

Marx' Method, Epistemology, and Humanism P.J. Kain, 2012-12-06 In recent writings on Marx one finds an increasing interest in his humanism This phenomenon began in the third decade of our century as a reaction against the mechanistic and stereotyped image of Marx 1 characteristic of the Second International and of Stalinism Lukacs in History and Class Consciousness 1923 was one of the first to discover this new Marx and he did so even before the most important 2 of the humanistic writings of the young Marx had been discovered With the publication of these writings in 1932 namely the Economic 3 and Philosophic Manuscripts of 1844 this new outlook was given enormous impetus In these Manuscripts Marx makes the human being the creator and the goal of all reality The objectification of the human essence through labor transforms both society and nature Labor transforms its world into a place which mirrors unfolds and confirms the human being This humanism is a complex and many faceted issue In this book we will be concerned only with a certain part of it i e the epistemology method and doctrine of nature which it involves Other aspects of it Marx concept of alienation and his theory of labor and the state have 4 been dealt with elsewhere
