Soy Charro De Rancho Grande:

Cinesonidos Jacqueline Avila, 2019 During Mexico's silent 1896-1930 and early sound 1931-52 periods cinema saw the development of five significant genres: the prostitute melodrama including the cabaretera subgenre, the indigenista film on indigenous themes or topics, the cine de a oranza porfiriana films of Porfirian nostalgia, the Revolution film, and the comedia ranchera ranch comedy. In this book author Jacqueline Avila looks at examples from all genres exploring the ways that the popular regional and orchestral music in these films contributed to the creation of tropes and archetypes now central to Mexican cultural nationalism. Integrating primary source material including newspaper articles, advertisements, films, with film music studies, sound studies, and Mexican film and cultural history, Avila examines how these tropes and archetypes mirrored changing perceptions of mexicanidad manufactured by the State and popular and transnational culture. As she shows, several social and political agencies were heavily invested in creating a unified national identity in an attempt to merge the previously fragmented populace as a result of the Revolution. The commercial medium of film became an important tool to acquaint a diverse urban audience with the nuances of Mexican national identity, and music played an essential and persuasive role in the process. In this heterogeneous environment, cinema and its music continuously reshaped the contested, fluctuating space of Mexican identity, functioning both as a sign and symptom of social and political change. Catalog of Copyright Entries, Library of Congress, Copyright Office, 1976

The Mexican Filmography, 1916 through 2001 David E. Wilt, 2024-10-17 Mexican cinema has largely been overlooked by international film scholars because of a lack of English language information and the fact that Spanish language information was difficult to find and often out of date. This comprehensive filmography helps fill the need. Arranged by year of release and then by title, the filmography contains entries that include basic information: film and translated title, production company, genre, director, cast, a plot summary, and additional information about the film. Inclusion criteria: a film must be a Mexican production or co-production, feature length, one hour or more. Silent films, excepted fictional documentaries and compilation films, are not included unless the topic relates to Mexican cinema. Some docudramas and films with recreated or staged scenes are included and theatrically released or intended for theatrical release.

Moreover, Mexico has the most advanced movie industry in the Spanish speaking world, and its impact on Mexican culture and society cannot be overstated. Included are original contributions written specifically for this title, plus a few classic pieces in the field of Mexican cinema studies never before available in English.
