Plundered Skulls and Stolen Spirits Chip Colwell, 2017-03-08 A leading anthropologist explores the fraught project of repatriating Native American sacred objects in this moving and thoughtful work Publishers Weekly Who own the objects that connect us to history And who has the right to decide particularly when the objects are sacred or in the case of skeletal remains human As senior curator of anthropology at the Denver Museum of Nature Science Chip Colwell has navigated questions like these firsthand In Plundered Skulls and Stolen Spirits he examines how to weigh the religious freedom of Native Americans against the academic freedom of scientists and whether the emptying of museum shelves elevates human rights or destroys a common heritage Today hundreds of tribes use the Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act to recover their looted heritage from museums across the country Colwell shares a personal account of this process following the trail of four objects as they were created collected and ultimately returned to their sources a sculpture that is a living god the scalp of a massacre victim a ceremonial blanket and a skeleton from a tribe considered by some to be extinct These stories reveal a dramatic process that involves not merely obeying the law but negotiating the blurry lines between identity and morality spirituality and politics Repatriation Colwell argues is a difficult but vitally important way for museums and tribes to heal the wounds of the past while creating a respectful approach to caring for these rich artifacts of history
