Early Modern Alan Stewart, 2018-05-04 The Oxford History of Life Writing Volume 2 Early Modern explores life writing in England between 1500 and 1700 and argues that this was a period which saw remarkable innovations in biography autobiography and diary keeping that laid the foundations for our modern life writing The challenges wrought by the upheavals and the sixteenth century English Reformation and seventeenth century Civil Wars moulded British and early American life writing in unique and lasting ways While classical and medieval models continued to exercise considerable influence new forms began to challenge them The English Reformation banished the saints lives that dominated the writings of medieval Catholicism only to replace them with new lives of Protestant martyrs Novel forms of self accounting came into existence from the daily moral self accounting dictated by strands of Calvinism to the daily financial self accounting modelled on the new double entry book keeping This volume shows how the most ostensibly private journals were circulated to build godly communities how women found new modes of recording and understanding their disrupted lives how men started to compartmentalize their lives for public and private consumption The volume doesn't intend to present a strict chronological progression from the medieval to the modern nor to suggest the triumphant rise of the fact based historical biography Instead it portrays early modern England as a site of multiple sometimes conflicting possibilities for life writing all of which have something to teach us about how the period understood both the concept of a life and what it mean to write a life American Women's

Autobiography Margo Culley,1992 Focus on the works of Harriet Jacobs Elizabeth Cady Stanton Gertrude Stein Mary McCarthy Maxine Hong Kingston and others American Autobiography Paul John Eakin,1991 The first four essays review the major historical periods of American autobiography placing the classic texts of American autobiographical literature from Captain John Smith to Malcolm X in the illuminating context of lesser known contemporary narratives Daniel B Shea writes on colonial America Lawrence Buell on the American Renaissance Susanna Egan on the years after the Civil War and Albert E Stone on the twentieth century The second part of American Autobiography shows the diversity of voices forms audiences and modes of identity in the literature of American autobiography Provocative essays by William Boelhower and Sau Ling Cynthia Wong on immigrant autobiography discuss the changes in the sense of self that occur when strangers come to a strange land Arnold Krupat writes about how American Indians conceptualize the self and about the relationship between oral and written discourse William L Andrews evaluates the strong body of critical theory that has grown up around African American autobiography showing how both the genre and its criticism have responded to contemporary historical pressures Carol Holly explores the model of personal identity that underlies nineteenth century women's autobiographies and Blanche Gelfant examines the narrative and political strategies of Emma Goldman's autobiography especially her use of popular romance and melodrama The last essay offers a more personal perspective on contemporary autobiography a dialogue between Robert and Jane Coles about how they developed their method of eliciting first person oral narratives for their famous Children of Crisis and Women of Crisis series These essays raise theoretical issues that are examined in Paul John Eakin's incisive introduction How do we define a literary genre of protean shape and perplexing cultural multiplicity How do we approach the special problems created by documents that are both historical and literary texts ones that pose difficult questions about truth and representation Most important how is the canon of American autobiography to be constructed and how is its history to be written Tracing that critical history Eakin explains how changing ideas about the mainstream and the marginal have revitalized our retrospective view of American autobiography and opened up new and exciting prospects for today's reader

Declarations of Independency in Eighteenth-century American Autobiography Susan Clair Imbarrato, 1998 In this ambitious work Susan Clair Imbarrato examines the changes in the American autobiographical voice as it speaks through the transition from a colonial society to an independent republic Imbarrato charts the development of early American autobiography from the self examination mode of the Puritan journal and diary to the self inventive modes of eighteenth century writings which in turn anticipate the more romantic voices of nineteenth century American literature She focuses especially on the ways in which first person narrative displayed an ever stronger awareness of its own subjectivity The eighteenth century she notes remained closer in temper to its Puritan communal foundations than to its Romantic progeny but there emerged nevertheless a sense of the individual voice that anticipated the democratic celebration of the self Through acts of self examination this study shows self construction became possible In tracing this development the author focuses on six writers in three literary genres She begins with the spiritual autobiographies of Jonathan Edwards and Elizabeth Ashbridge and then considers the travel narratives of Dr Alexander Hamilton and Elizabeth House Trist She concludes with an examination of political autobiography as exemplified in the writings of John Adams and Thomas Jefferson These authors Imbarrato finds were invigorated by their choices in a social political climate that revered the individual in proper relationship to the republic Their writings expressed a revolutionary spirit that was neither cynical nor despairing but one that evinced a shared conviction about the bond between self and community
