Transforming Asian Cities Nihal

Perera, Wing-shing Tang, 2013 While there is no lack of studies on Asian cities the majority focus on financial districts poverty the slum tradition tourism and pollution and use the modern affluent and transforming Western city as the reference point This vast Asian empirical presence is not complemented by a theoretical presence academic discourses overlook common and basic urban processes particularly the production of space place and identity by ordinary citizens Switching the vantage point to Asian cities and citizens Transforming Asian Cities draws attention to how Asians produce their contemporary urban practices identities and spaces as part of resisting responding to and avoiding larger global and national processes Instead of viewing Asian cities in opposition to the Western city and using it as the norm this book instead opts to provincialize mainstream and traditional knowledge. It argues that the vast terrain of ordinary actors and spaces which are currently left out should be reflected in academic debates and policy decisions and the local thinking processes that constitute these spaces need to be acknowledged, enabled and critiqued. The individual chapters illustrate that global spaces are more trans local, traditional environments are more modern and Asian spaces are better defined than acknowledged. The aim is to develop room for understandings of Asian cities from Asian standpoints, especially acknowledging how Asians observe, interpret, understand and create space in their cities. Engaging Comparative Urbanism Julie Ren, 2020-12-09 Julie Ren investigates the motivations and practices of making art spaces in Beijing and Berlin to engage with comparative urbanism as a framework for doing research beyond its significance as a critical intervention. Across vastly different contexts where universal theories of modernity or development seem increasingly misplaced, she innovatively explores the ways that art spaces employ creative capital to sustain themselves in a competitive urban landscape. She shows how these art spaces are embedded within a politics of aspiration and demonstrates that aspiration is an important lens through which to understand the nature of and possibilities for urban change. Geography and Geographers Ron Johnston, James Sidaway, 2015-12-22 Explores the relationship between human and physical geography. All chapters updated in the new edition to reflect new literature and changes in the discipline. Chapter One systematically considers representations of geographical thought. The closing chapter develops an explicit argument about what has made human geography distinctive. Draws on a wide reading of the geographical literature produced during a fifty year period characterised by both growth in the number of academic geographers and substantial shifts in conceptions of the discipline's scientific rationale. East Central Europe and the Former Soviet Union David Turnock, 2024-11-01 Since 1898 the former communist countries of Eastern Europe have gained international prominence. The continuing socio-economic transition and the instability evident in areas like the Caucasus and Former Yugoslavia have drawn the western world into uneasy interactions with the region. At the same time closer commercial and cultural contacts are providing opportunities for rewarding relationships which have now resulted in many of these countries joining the EU. This book provides detailed coverage of the transition from communism to a market economy. Covering the whole range of East Central European and former Soviet Union countries it charts the diversity within the region, offering in-depth coverage of specific areas as well as a broad view of development across the region. The book is organised into three comprehensive sections: the historical, socio-economic and environmental. The socio-economic section considers the critical issues of restructuring to effect the transition from central planning to a market economy while the historical material provides an essential context for the constraints and opportunities affecting the region. The environmental section places emphasis on results of environmental neglect inherited from communism as well as looking to the future implications of EU directives on the problems of biodiversity and pollution in the region.
